Modified Closed Shop Bill Given Senators

COMPROMISE TO FLAT BAN IS BEFORE SENATE

House Reaction To Charge Against Russia By Solons Watched

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24—Legislation to permit employes of a given company to establish a "modified" closed shop by a two-thirds vote was introduced in the senate today.

The bill was offered by Sen. Wherry (R) Neb., GOP majority whip, for himself and Sen. McCarthy (R) Wis., original sponsor of the plan.

McCarthy devised the measure as a compromise to the flat ban against closed or "union" shops introduced by Sen. Ball (R) Minn.

The McCarthy-Wherry bill would outlaw the "permit" system whereby some building trades unions allow non-members to work on "union" jobs for payment of a specified fee. It would prevent the discharge of an employe expelled from a union for reasons other than non-payment of dues and would grant employment to one denied union membership.

McCarthy said the bill would "restore free speech to employers."

The Ferguson-Smith bill creating a separate system of "labor courts" was being prepared for introduction in the senate next week.

Sen. Smith (R) N. J., a member of the senate labor committee said he had joined Sen. Ferguson (R) Mich., in sponsoring the plan. Under the measure, labor courts would interpret existing labor-management contracts and settle "justifiable" disputes arising out of labor law.

The bill will be a major addition to the crop of measures before the labor committee when it resumes hearings Tuesday with Labor Secretary Schwellenbach as its first witness.

There was still talk in the house about words spoken against Russia by a handful of congressional leaders who charged the Soviet constituted the greatest challenge to "human freedom" in the world.

For more than an hour, three influential congressmen—Rep. Dirksen (R) Ill., McCormack (D) Mass., and Rankin (D) Miss.—addressed the house on the subject of Communism. They drew vigorous applause and approval as they made their points.

At the same time, there was some doubt in diplomatic quarters as to whether secretary of state George C. Marshall will attend the scheduled Moscow meeting of the "big four" foreign ministers.

The feeling generally was that Marshall would not go to Moscow in March unless there appears at the time to be some hope of making progress in drafting the treaties for Germany and Austria.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

Well this probably is goodby. . . the lifetime pen I got for Christmas is busted.

I have looked at the guarantee and it says "if this pen breaks before you die, common decency suggests suicide."

My horoscope said I had years to go but who am I to argue with a company that's been in business for 50 years?

The only ray of hope I have is that further down in the fine print it says "this pen will never leak, blot, run dry or break. . . but if it does we have the biggest repair department in the country."

So it may be that they anticipated an exception like mine to the good-for-a-lifetime-clause.

Anyway while I'm here let me say that senate Republicans and Democrats are both afflicted with 32-48 vision.

They handled the war investigating committee debate more like boxers sparring for an opening than cops dedicating themselves to catching a crook.

Ball, Taft Talk Labor Overhaul

SENATOR JOSEPH BALL, left, of Minnesota confers with Ohio Senator Robert Taft after he told the senate labor committee that "the American worker will have no more freedom than did the worker in Nazi Germany if present labor abuses are not curbed. Ball and Taft are urging approval of the revised Case bill as a "good starting point" for overhauling labor legislation.

Dying Man's Eye Saves Sight of W. H. Wilson

William H. Wilson, 54-year-old farmer living on Route 2, Circleville, Friday had vision in two eyes as a result of the unusual generosity of a World War I "buddy" plus the near-miracle of the science of eye surgery.

It was on Dec. 14, 1946 that Wilson peered into a burning stove in a stock barn on his farm on the Hickory Bend road in Wayne township. The stove exploded and injured both of his eyes.

Wilson was treated by Dr. G. D. Sheets, Wiliamsport, and then by Dr. C. G. Stewart, Circleville. The injured man was removed to the Dayton Veterans hospital where he remained for several weeks under treatment.

Despite the efforts of medical science and surgery the sight of his right eye had been permanently destroyed and his left eye was in very poor condition.

Another World War I veteran was near death in the same ward with Wilson. Realizing that death was inevitable and was near at hand the dying man volunteered to give the cornea of one of his good eyes to replace the destroyed cornea of Wilson's right eye.

The offer was accepted and approved by the physicians and surgeons. The delicate operation was performed.

Days afterward, when the bandages were removed, it was found that the operation was a success. Wilson again had vision in his right eye—the eye of his war "buddy".

The name of the man who so generously gave his eye to Wilson has been undisclosed.

Under further treatment the vision in Wilson's left eye has greatly improved.

Wilson is back on his farm again with his wife and their two children.

FUNERAL HELD FOR SLAIN GIRL

Harvey Julian Not Permitted To Attend Rites For Murdered Wife

Funeral services for Mrs. Pearl Eileen Brown Julian, 20, murdered Tuesday afternoon on the Hitler-Ludwing road three miles east of Circleville, were to be conducted at 2:30 p. m. Friday in the Pilgrim Holiness church on Hayward avenue. The Rev. Alonzo Hill was to officiate. Burial was to be in Forest cemetery. The body was removed to the church at 10:30 a. m. Friday.

A steady stream of men, women, and children walked past the bier of the slain young mother Thursday night at the Defenbaugh funeral home. Young people predominated among the visitors to the chapel.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff announced that Harvey Julian, 26, ex-husband and confessed slayer of Mrs. Julian, would not be permitted to attend the funeral rites.

At Julian's request, however, Sheriff Radcliff and Deputies Vern L. Pontious and Carl Radcliff escorted Julian to the funeral home one hour before the body was removed to the church.

Julian gazed upon the face of his murdered former wife and then burst into tears.

WORKERS WATCH ROBBERS SNATCH PAPER PAYROLL

NEW YORK, Jan. 24—Two robbers, one armed, stole a $20,000 payroll from the office of the Brooklyn Daily Eagle today.

A few minutes after a Wells Fargo armored car had delivered the payroll to the cashier's cage, two men came into the lobby through a revolving door.

One had a handkerchief tied over his face and the nose of a pistol showing under the flap of his coat. The other wore a woolen scarf over his face.

About 70 employes were waiting in line to be paid. Stunned by the swiftness of the action, they made no move to interfere.

LEGION URGING WAR HONOR ROLL BE DEMOBILIZED

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 24—State American Legion Commander Don W. Schoeppe proposed today that World War II community honor rolls be "demobilized."

Schoeppe said he was urging all state Legion posts to take the lead in formulating plans to dismantle the rolls and hold suitable ceremonies. He suggested that Memorial Day be set for the occasion.

The Legion head pointed out that the present rolls were only temporary and that most of those he had seen needed repainting and repairing.

"To leave (them) standing is a disgrace," he said, "and to repair them at this time would probably be a waste of money."

He added that the lists of men and women who had served in World War II should be turned over to officials and veterans organizations for custody until they can be preserved in permanet memorial form.

STEEL SESSION MAY SET NEW WAGE PATTERN

Conference Recesses After CIO Presents Demands For Big Raise

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 24—The CIO-United Steelworkers-big steel contract bargaining negotiations recessed today after the union submitted its proposed wage and other demands.

Representatives of the union and the five subsidiaries of the U. S. Steel Corporation are scheduled to resume bargaining talks Monday.

USW President Philip Murray said the steelworkers asked for a "substantial" wage increase, but did not set a definite figure.

The union chieftain said the steelworkers executive board would meet this afternoon prior to a meeting of the national wage policy board.

The conference broke up after a brief organization meeting at which Vice President John A. Stephens of U. S. Steel was elected chairman, and David McDonald, secretary-treasurer of the Steelworkers, was named secretary.

The outcome of the Pittsburgh conference is expected to set the pattern for the nation's basic steel industry.

It also will be the formula for contracts for steel fabricators and dependent steel firms.

Union officials and representatives of five U. S. steel subsidiaries met in a Pittsburgh hotel amid persistent reports that major contract issues have been settled in advance.

Neither Murray, nor Stephens, company vice president in charge of industrial relations would comment on the reports.

When Murray was asked if it would be a long conference, the union chieftain said he had "no comment."

Earlier Iron Age, unofficial but authoritative publication for the steel industry, declared that the outline for negotiations had been settled in advance and a definite

TRUMAN TALKS RENT CONTROL WITH CABINET

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24—President Truman discussed holding the line on rent controls with his cabinet today.

Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, director of the office of temporary controls, said the chief executive is anxious for congress to retain controls on rents beyond next June 30, when the present law expires.

Fleming said:

"If rent controls were to come off, we fear there would be an immediate high spiral of rental costs together with thousands of evictions. We hope the congress will prevent this from happening."

Fleming said that he has already ordered his field offices to liberalize rent ceilings where hardship cases can be shown.

He said that this liberalization means no rise in the level of rentals but permission for increase in rentals to a comparable level to surrounding property in instances where rentals on specific properties have been below the normal area average.

GEORGIA STATE AFFAIRS STOP

Battle Over Governorship Ties Up Funds; Citizen Filibuster Hinted

ATLANTA Ga., Jan. 24—Georgia's strange gubernatorial row left state affairs at a virtual point of stymie today with highway and revenue funds frozen and with charges and counter-charges still filling the beclouded atmosphere.

While the general assembly adjourned for a "long week-end," State Treasurer George Hamilton maintained he will not honor requests for funds from either the highway department or the state revenue commission.

The treasurer's move, in effect, crippled the operations of both the state agencies.

Hamilton explained he would continue upholding the operating expenses until heads of the departments, appointed by Herman Talmadge, are legally endorsed and qualified or proven pretenders to their positions.

He also said that all federal monies received for the highway department will be held in the treasury safe.

Hamilton explained further that,

30,000 LICE ON WAY TO CAPITAL FROM DENMARK

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 24—Attention Washington! Get out your spray-gun!

The Copenhagen newspaper Aftonbladet reported today that 30,000 lice of 6,000 separate species are on their way to the American capital in nine wooden chests.

They were described as property of a German scientist now living in Denmark. The United States department of agriculture was said to have asked for them.

M'NARNEY WILL PROBE CHARGES OF SLAVE LABOR

Russians Accused Of Using Released Germans For Manual Labor

BY GEORGE W. HERALD
INS Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, Jan. 24—Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, top U. S. commander in Germany, disclosed today he is launching a sweeping probe into reports that German prisoners of war released from American camps are being deported to Russia as slave labor.

The reports come from many sources, including former German officers "graduated" from U. S. camps after courses in American democracy who received "certificates of achievement" testifying to their rejection of Nazism.

According to these reports, nearly 4,000 German officers were deported to Russia shortly after repatriation to their homes in the Russian zone of Germany from the United States, or in some cases Great Britain.

They were men the U. S. and British governments had hoped would be ambassadors of good will for democracy to their disillusioned and philosophically bankrupt people.

Now, according to reliable sources, they are working as manual laborers on roads and in mines between Rostov and Novocherkassk in southern Russia near the sea of Azov.

This specific group of returned POWS arrived at the border between the American and Russian zones of occupation near Erfurt about Feb. 15, 1946.

There they were told that they would have to submit to about two weeks of medical examination before leaving for their homes. The enlisted men were taken to camps near Dresden, Leipzig and Halle. The officers were sent to the former Nazi concentration camp at Oranienburg.

What happened to the enlisted men is not known. Reports on the officers is available because Oranienburg is relatively close to Berlin and some of them came to the German capital after being re-

HERBERT, BELL TO TALK OVER JUDGE'S FUTURE

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 24—Governor Herbert will confer Monday with Judge Charles S. Bell to learn his views on persistent rumors that he wishes to resign from the Ohio supreme court to return to the Hamilton county common pleas bench.

Herbert disclosed at a news conference today that he had telephoned Bell at his Cincinnati home to ask for an appointment.

Since the recent death of Judge Frederick L. Hoffman of the Hamilton county court, reports have circulated that Bell would like to relinquish his high court post for an appointment to the vacancy.

Half Potato Crop May Be Destroyed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24—Almost half of the 45-million bushel surplus potato crop grown last year may have to be destroyed, it was disclosed today by the department of agriculture.

Agriculture Secretary Anderson declared that if congress does not appropriate money to help feed starving peoples, the department cannot take a humanitarian point of view on the needs of foreign nations.

Anderson, appearing before the senate agriculture committee, bluntly declared:

"We must get dollars for what we sell."

He testified that all foreign nations receiving American food were paying for it in American dollars.

Even as he testified, the department announced that of the all-time Jan. 1 high of 150 million bushels of potatoes on hand, 45 millions are estimated to be surplus.

Disposal of this surplus to divert it from regular trade channels is part of the department's price support program.

It was explained that about 25 million bushels of the surplus can be diverted to livestock feed, the school lunch program, export trade and manufacturers of non-food products.

WARM 'SPELL' MAY CONTINUE

Mild Weather Eases Fuel Gas Emergency; Service Back To Normal

Cheery news for chilled residents of the Circleville area came Friday from the U. S. Weather Bureau.

Already gladdened by the mild weather which replaced the recent cold wave area residents will be further gladdened by the official forecast of still warmer temperatures.

Indications are, the weatherman reported, that the balmy weather will continue over the weekend, but occasional rain is anticipated Saturday.

Disappearance of the frigid temperatures has eased the fuel gas emergency it was announced Friday by the Ohio Fuel Gas company.

F. W. Phillips, Athens district manager for the gas company, in announcing the easing of the tremendous demand for fuel gas during the cold spell, voiced thanks to consumers for their "willing cooperation in using gas sparingly during the serious situation."

He said service has been restored to industries using gas in manufacturing processes. The service had been curtailed during the cold wave.

Months ago the company announced that the supply of gas available this Winter would be insufficient to meet the demand. Phillips asserted that the gas company is carrying through its program to bring more gas to this area from abundant fields of supply as fast as materials and skilled man-power become available. In

FLOOD BARRIER AT CINCINNATI IS DEDICATED

CINCINNATI, Jan. 24—The Army engineer corps joined Cincinnatians today in commemorating the city's famous "Black Sunday" of a decade ago by dedicating the dam and pumphouse designed to prevent a repetition of that catastrophe.

U. S. Senator Robert A. Taft and Lt. Gen. R. A. Wheeler, chief of the corps of engineers, attended the "Black Sunday" luncheon on the anniversary of the flood and fire that swept the Queen City's industrial Mill Creek valley, Jan. 24, 1937.

After the luncheon, Taft, Wheeler, civic officials and leaders and citizens watched the unveiling of the bronze plaque at the barrier dam pumphouse of the Mill Creek dam.

TRIAL SET FOR MARCH 19 IN FEDERAL COURT

May Accused Of Agreeing To Accept $53,634 From Garsson Interests

NEW DEVELOPMENTS SEEN

Clark Reveals Special Grand Jury To Be Recalled To Study New Evidence

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24—Former Rep. Andrew J. May and three key figures in the Garsson munitions "empire" today were ordered to stand trial March 19 on charges that they conspired against the government in wartime.

May, Dr. Henry M. Garsson, his brother, Murray Garsson, and Joseph Freeman, Washington agent for the munitions combine, were arraigned before Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws in U. S. district court.

All of the defendants pleaded "not guilty"—May in a loud, clear, challenging voice.

The four were released after being fingerprinted and posting bail of $2,000 each.

May, who was chairman of the powerful house military affairs committee throughout the war, is accused of having agreed to accept a total of $53,634 for his alleged "services" to the Garsson interests in connection with their 78 million dollars in war contracts.

The Garssons and Freeman are alleged to have conspired with May and to have induced him to violate the law.

Justice Laws rejected a defense move for a 15-day delay in the arraignment.

Immediately after the arraignment, the 72-year-old ex-congressman was taken to the office of U. S. Marshal Michael Kearney, where he was fingerprinted.

Former Solon 'Ordinary'

The former Democratic congressman showed no signs of the heart ailment which prevented his appearance before the senate war investigating committee last Summer.

When reporters asked him about his health, he boomed:

"Well, I'm feeling ordinary."

May was in high good humor, apparently, as he posted bond in the criminal clerk's office.

He suggested to Deputy Clerk Margaret Boswell that the court send to his home town, Prestonsburg, Ky., for jurors. He grinned:

"If you do that I won't challenge any of them."

As he left the court house May strode past a battery of news pho-

THIRD MEMBER OF SAFE GANG IS APPREHENDED

James Jordan, 35, secretly indicted by the Pickaway county grand jury for the burglary of the James D. Butts general store at the village of Fox, was taken into custody at Mount Clemens, Mich., according to notification received Friday by Sheriff Charles Radcliff.

Sheriff Radcliff said he planned to journey to Mount Clemens, Mich., to transfer the prisoner to the county jail in Circleville. Michigan authorities informed the sheriff that Jordan has waived extradition.

Three men broke into the store at Fox at 3 a. m. Sept. 5, 1946 and carried away a 500-pound safe containing $200, along with other loot. The following day sheriff's deputies arrested Walter Leo Roberts, 29, and Wilbur Jeffords, 37, both of Portsmouth, near Circleville.

Roberts, Jeffords and Jordan were all indicted and the search for Jordan had been continued since then. Roberts and Jeffords pleaded guilty in Pickaway county common pleas court and Judge Emmitt L. Crist sentenced each to serve one to 15 years in the Ohio penitentiary.

Neighbors Rally To Assistance Of Beavers Family, Who Lost Home By Fire

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Beavers and family were still looking for a home Friday, but they are among the happiest people in Pickaway county.

Tragedy struck the family Tuesday when fire destroyed their home on state route 56 and practically all of their furniture and clothing. Mrs. Beavers had recently returned from the hospital. Relatives provided shelter to the family.

Neighbors and friends quickly rallied to aid the Beavers family. A solicitation of the township was made and Friday the gifts to date include:

All kinds of clothing, more than a truck load of furniture: approximately $400 in cash; 500 cans of fruit and vegetables; quantities of meat and potatoes.

And gifts are still pouring in.

Members of the Washington township school, the Home and School organization, the Washington township Grange, and other citizens of the community asked The Herald to express appreciation to all those who so willingly contributed toward the assistance given the Beavers family.

A baby was born to the Beavers just two weeks preceding the fire. Mrs. Beavers had been removed to her home from Berger hospital in Circleville just a few days before the home was destroyed.

Until the family can find another home they are living temporarily in the home of Beavers' brother, Earl Beavers, one-half mile from the burned dwelling.

Besides the baby Mr. and Mrs. Beavers have three other children. They are a 3-year-old son and two daughters aged 7 and 10.

STEEL SESSION MAY SET NEW WAGE PATTERN

Conference Recesses After CIO Presents Demands For Big Raise

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 24—The CIO-United Steelworkers-big steel contract bargaining negotiations recessed today after the union submitted its proposed wage and other demands.

TRUMAN TALKS RENT CONTROL WITH CABINET

Russians Accused Of Using Released Germans For Manual Labor

BY GEORGE W. HERALD
INS Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, Jan. 24—Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, top U. S. commander in Germany, disclosed today he is launching a sweeping probe into reports that German prisoners of war released from American camps are being deported to Russia as slave labor.

The reports come from many sources, including former German officers "graduated" from U. S. camps after courses in American democracy who received "certificates of achievement" testifying to their rejection of Nazism.

According to these reports, nearly 4,000 German officers were deported to Russia shortly after repatriation to their homes in the Russian zone of Germany from the United States, or in some cases Great Britain.

They were men the U. S. and British governments had hoped would be ambassadors of good will for democracy to their disillusioned and philosophically bankrupt people.

Now, according to reliable sources, they are working as manual laborers on roads and in mines between Rostov and Novocherkassk in southern Russia near the sea of Azov.

This specific group of returned POWS arrived at the border between the American and Russian zones of occupation near Erfurt about Feb. 15, 1946.

There they were told that they would have to submit to about two weeks of medical examination before leaving for their homes. The enlisted men were taken to camps near Dresden, Leipzig and Halle. The officers were sent to the former Nazi concentration camp at Oranienburg.

What happened to the enlisted men is not known. Reports on the officers is available because Oranienburg is relatively close to Berlin and some of them came to the German capital after being re-

HERBERT, BELL TO TALK OVER JUDGE'S FUTURE

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 24—Governor Herbert will confer Monday with Judge Charles S. Bell to learn his views on persistent rumors that he wishes to resign from the Ohio supreme court to return to the Hamilton county common pleas bench.

Herbert disclosed at a news conference today that he had telephoned Bell at his Cincinnati home to ask for an appointment.

Since the recent death of Judge Frederick L. Hoffman of the Hamilton county court, reports have circulated that Bell would like to relinquish his high court post for an appointment to the vacancy.

CABINET ORDERED

ATHENS, Jan. 24—King George II of Greece today designated Dimitrios Maximos, Populist leader, to head a coalition cabinet to replace that of Constantin Tsaldaris who resigned two days ago.

Half Potato Crop May Be Destroyed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24—Almost half of the 45-million bushel surplus potato crop grown last year may have to be destroyed, it was disclosed today by the department of agriculture.

Agriculture Secretary Anderson declared that if congress does not appropriate money to help feed starving peoples, the department cannot take a humanitarian point of view on the needs of foreign nations.

Anderson, appearing before the senate agriculture committee, bluntly declared:

"We must get dollars for what we sell."

He testified that all foreign nations receiving American food were paying for it in American dollars.

Even as he testified, the department announced that of the all-time Jan. 1 high of 150 million bushels of potatoes on hand, 45 millions are estimated to be surplus.

Disposal of this surplus to divert it from regular trade channels is part of the department's price support program.

It was explained that about 25 million bushels of the surplus can be diverted to livestock feed, the school lunch program, export trade and manufacturers of non-food products.

WARM 'SPELL' MAY CONTINUE

Mild Weather Eases Fuel Gas Emergency; Service Back To Normal

Cheery news for chilled residents of the Circleville area came Friday from the U. S. Weather Bureau.

Already gladdened by the mild weather which replaced the recent cold wave area residents will be further gladdened by the official forecast of still warmer temperatures.

Indications are, the weatherman reported, that the balmy weather will continue over the weekend, but occasional rain is anticipated Saturday.

Disappearance of the frigid temperatures has eased the fuel gas emergency it was announced Friday by the Ohio Fuel Gas company.

F. W. Phillips, Athens district manager for the gas company, in announcing the easing of the tremendous demand for fuel gas during the cold spell, voiced thanks to consumers for their "willing cooperation in using gas sparingly during the serious situation."

He said service has been restored to industries using gas in manufacturing processes. The service had been curtailed during the cold wave.

Months ago the company announced that the supply of gas available this Winter would be insufficient to meet the demand. Phillips asserted that the gas company is carrying through its program to bring more gas to this area from abundant fields of supply as fast as materials and skilled man-power become available. In

CINCINNATI, Jan. 24—The Army engineer corps joined Cincinnatians today in commemorating the city's famous "Black Sunday" of a decade ago by dedicating the dam and pumphouse designed to prevent a repetition of that catastrophe.

U. S. Senator Robert A. Taft and Lt. Gen. R. A. Wheeler, chief of the corps of engineers, attended the "Black Sunday" luncheon on the anniversary of the flood and fire that swept the Queen City's industrial Mill Creek valley, Jan. 24, 1937.

After the luncheon, Taft, Wheeler, civic officials and leaders and citizens watched the unveiling of the bronze plaque at the barrier dam pumphouse of the Mill Creek dam.

TRIAL SET FOR MARCH 19 IN FEDERAL COURT

May Accused Of Agreeing To Accept $53,634 From Garsson Interests

NEW DEVELOPMENTS SEEN

Clark Reveals Special Grand Jury To Be Recalled To Study New Evidence

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24—Former Rep. Andrew J. May and three key figures in the Garsson munitions "empire" today were ordered to stand trial March 19 on charges that they conspired against the government in wartime.

May, Dr. Henry M. Garsson, his brother, Murray Garsson, and Joseph Freeman, Washington agent for the munitions combine, were arraigned before Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws in U. S. district court.

All of the defendants pleaded "not guilty"—May in a loud, clear, challenging voice.

The four were released after being fingerprinted and posting bail of $2,000 each.

May, who was chairman of the powerful house military affairs committee throughout the war, is accused of having agreed to accept a total of $53,634 for his alleged "services" to the Garsson interests in connection with their 78 million dollars in war contracts.

The Garssons and Freeman are alleged to have conspired with May and to have induced him to violate the law.

Justice Laws rejected a defense move for a 15-day delay in the arraignment.

Immediately after the arraignment, the 72-year-old ex-congressman was taken to the office of U. S. Marshal Michael Kearney, where he was fingerprinted.

Former Solon 'Ordinary'

The former Democratic congressman showed no signs of the heart ailment which prevented his appearance before the senate war investigating committee last Summer.

When reporters asked him about his health, he boomed:

"Well, I'm feeling ordinary."

May was in high good humor, apparently, as he posted bond in the criminal clerk's office.

He suggested to Deputy Clerk Margaret Boswell that the court send to his home town, Prestonsburg, Ky., for jurors. He grinned:

"If you do that I won't challenge any of them."

As he left the court house May strode past a battery of news pho-

THIRD MEMBER OF SAFE GANG IS APPREHENDED

James Jordan, 35, secretly indicted by the Pickaway county grand jury for the burglary of the James D. Butts general store at the village of Fox, was taken into custody at Mount Clemens, Mich., according to notification received Friday by Sheriff Charles Radcliff.

Sheriff Radcliff said he planned to journey to Mount Clemens, Mich., to transfer the prisoner to the county jail in Circleville. Michigan authorities informed the sheriff that Jordan has waived extradition.

Three men broke into the store at Fox at 3 a. m. Sept. 5, 1946 and carried away a 500-pound safe containing $200, along with other loot. The following day sheriff's deputies arrested Walter Leo Roberts, 29, and Wilbur Jeffords, 37, both of Portsmouth, near Circleville.

Roberts, Jeffords and Jordan were all indicted and the search for Jordan had been continued since then. Roberts and Jeffords pleaded guilty in Pickaway county common pleas court and Judge Emmitt L. Crist sentenced each to serve one to 15 years in the Ohio penitentiary.

SLAV CLAIM REJECTED

LONDON, Jan. 24—Austrian Foreign Minister Karl Gruber rejected today as unjustified Yugoslavia's territorial claims on his country. Yugoslavia entered a formal request with the big four foreign ministers deputies for reparations and the Slovene Carinthia strip in the Drave river valley in the southeast corner of Austria.

Neighbors Rally To Assistance Of Beavers Family, Who Lost Home By Fire

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Beavers and family were still looking for a home Friday, but they are among the happiest people in Pickaway county.

Tragedy struck the family Tuesday when fire destroyed their home on state route 56 and practically all of their furniture and clothing. Mrs. Beavers had recently returned from the hospital. Relatives provided shelter to the family.

Neighbors and friends quickly rallied to aid the Beavers family. A solicitation of the township was made and Friday the gifts to date include:

All kinds of clothing, more than a truck load of furniture; approximately $400 in cash; 500 cans of fruit and vegetables; quantities of meat and potatoes.

And gifts are still pouring in.

Members of the Washington township school, the Home and School organization, the Washington township Grange, and other citizens of the community asked The Herald to express appreciation to all those who so willingly contributed toward the assistance given the Beavers family.

A baby was born to the Beavers just two weeks preceding the fire. Mrs. Beavers had been removed to her home from Berger hospital in Circleville just a few days before the home was destroyed.

Until the family can find another home they are living temporarily in the home of Beavers' brother, Earl Beavers, one-half mile from the burned dwelling.

Besides the baby Mr. and Mrs. Beavers have three other children. They are a 3-year-old son and two daughters aged 7 and 10.

Garsson Tries To Duck

Murray Garsson, long an elusive figure in the case, sought to escape the camera barrage. He urged his attorney, Allen Krouse, to escort the Garsson brothers and Freeman from the courthouse by a rear exit, but Krouse insisted on using the main door.

At the door, Murray Garsson pased briefly to make a statement. He said:

"These boys (referring to the cameramen), God bless 'em, are making Roman holiday not realizing the things we did to end the war the way it ended.

"If Hitler had had the things we had and knew what we were doing. . ."

His attorney interrupted him and pressed him forward.

May arrived in Washington this morning from Prestonsburg, Henry Garsson rushed to the capital from Chicago and Murray Garsson and Freeman already were in Washington when the indictment was returned yesterday.

As the defendants went into conference with their counsel following the arraignment, to plan the courtroom strategy through which May and the Garssons have declared their confidence they will be cleared, sensational new developments in the war profit probe were forecast.

Attorney General Clark announced that the special grand jury, which accused May of agreeing to accept $53,634 for using his office to aid the Garsson interests, is to be recalled to consider further evidence.

At the same time, Sen Brewster (R) Maine, chairman of teh senate war investigating committee, said the May-Garsson case was "just a side-show" compared to what the committee will develop in a new sweeping probe of war contracts.

Brewster labelled the indictments as "interesting timing."

May, who served 16 years in congress before his defeat last November, is accused of having actually received $16,000 from the Garsson interests and of agreeing to receive $53,634 and "other compensation to the grand jurors unknown."

The Garssor brothers and Freeman are charged with having "aided, abette., counseled, procured and induced" the commission of May's alleged offense.

May to Fight

Before leaving his Prestonburg, Ky., home last night for the capital, May said he would fight the indictment "to the limit." May said he was "fighting mad" and added:

"I am not guilty. I have done nothing wrong and have not violated any law. I will ask for a speedy trial and expect to vindicate myself completely."

The Garssons issued a statement in which they said "we have done no wrong" and added that "we welcome this opportunity of having the entire story-not half-truths —presented before a fair and impartial tribunal."

Brags On Self

Henry Garsson earlier declared in Chicago that he had "contributed more to the war effort than any person in the United States outside of those in the armed forces."

May is accused under a provision of the United States code which makes it an offense for a member of congress to receive any compensation for services rendered in connection with any matter in which the United States is directly interested—such as the war effort.

If convicted, the defendants face fines of not more than $10,000 and imprisonment of not more than two years on each of four counts.

The continuing FBI inquiry is expected to link to the case the names of top Army and civilian officials said to have been "contacted" by May in his alleged capacity as congressional "guardian angel" of the Garsson empire.

The indictment returned yesterday specifically mentions the following officials as having been approached by May in behalf of the Garsson interests:

President Truman, who conferred with Marshall yesterday, meanwhile expressed regret over the death of Harold Smith, vice president of the world bank and former director of the budget.

A White House statement said the president was "terribly shocked" over hearing that Smith died of a heart attack at his Culpepper, Va., farm late Thursday.

Smith was stricken about 5:30 p. m. and never regained consciousness.

until it is completely decided whether Talmadge or his rival claimant to the governorship, M. E. Thompson, is entitled to the position, he will decline to accept officially any collections from the revenue department. Instead, the checks will be placed in the treasury vaults rather than deposited at banks, as usual.

As the lawmakers adjourned until Monday, rumors were circulated that a "citizen's filibuster" may begin next week to force the legislature to adjourn until a court decision is reached in the gubernatorial squabble.

Any move of this nature, obviously would come as a pro-Thompson maneuver and a counter-move against Talmadge's efforts to have his supporters "appeal to the legislators by telegraph and telephone."

FAMILY NIGHT PLANNED

Hank and Slim Newman, the Georgia Crackers, and special films will be featured at the McCormick-Deering family night program planned Tuesday night in Memorial hall. All Pickaway county farmers are invited to bring their families to the program, which starts at 7:30 p. m. The event is being sponsored by the Hill Implement company.

jected by the Russians on physical grounds.

When the officers arrived at Oranienburg in March, they were stripped and forced to surrender all their clothing except one shirt, one pair of trousers, one pair of shoes and a set of underwear.

All valuables, including watches, rings, money or cameras were taken from them as were personal toilet articles issued them by the U. S. Army before their return to Germany.

The camp was run by German officers who apparently attempted to ingratiate themselves with the Russians by treating their former comrades as harshly as possible.

Soviet officers who supervised the camp were said to have been polite and correct in their occasional dealings with the German officer-prisoners.

After three months of waiting, during which time the men had no idea what was in store for them, they were told on June 11 that they had been "restored" to the status of prisoner-of-war.

At the end of June a Russian medical commission came to the camp and picked about 2,000 of the 5,000 men there. They were put in sealed box-cars and sent to Frankfurt on the Oder.

the meantime, he cautioned, there should be no waste of gas.

"We possibly will have more severe cold spells this Winter", he said, "and all of us can help prepare for those periods by being conservative in our daily use of gas."

Forecasters said that the sudden mild weather was being influenced by a low pressure area from the Northwest and that the mercury was on the upgrade as far north as the province of Alberta, Canada.

This means, forecasters said, that Winter has had another relapse and probably will be in no condition to bring any cold weather around for the next several days.

FARMER SEEKS TO REMOVE OATS AND HAY FROM BARN

Charles Jewell filed an injunction suit in Pickaway county common pleas court, Thursday, against George Goeller, Circleville township farmer, in a move to gain possession of a quantity of oats and hay in Goeller's barn.

Judge William D. Radcliff issued a temporary injunction restraining Goeller from interfering with Jewell in seizing the oats and hay. In his petition Jewell says that during the farm crop season in 1946 he and Goeller entered into a contract or rental agreement under the terms of which he was to farm a portion of the Goeller farm and was to have use of the Goeller barn for storage of his oats and hay. Jewell said he thus made use of the barn and that now Goeller refuses to permit him to remove the oats and hay.

Murray insisted that the industry can increase wages 25 percent without increasing price. It is understood that steel makers are willing to grant a 10 to 12 per cent wage boost.

may not attend this meeting thus far have been negative rather than positive. But, it was pointed out that when questioned by reporters on his arrival in Washington Marshall indicated that he had given no thought to the conference.

President Truman, who conferred with Marshall yesterday, meanwhile expressed regret over the death of Harold Smith, vice president of the world bank and former director of the budget.

A White House statement said the president was "terribly shocked" over hearing that Smith died of a heart attack at his Culpepper, Va., farm late Thursday.

Smith was stricken about 5:30 p. m. and never regained consciousness.

GEORGIA STATE AFFAIRS STOP

until it is completely decided whether Talmadge or his rival claimant to the governorship, M. E. Thompson, is entitled to the position, he will decline to accept officially any collections from the revenue department. Instead, the checks will be placed in the treasury vaults rather than deposited at banks, as usual.

As the lawmakers adjourned until Monday, rumors were circulated that a "citizen's filibuster" may begin next week to force the legislature to adjourn until a court decision is reached in the gubernatorial squabble.

Any move of this nature, obviously would come as a pro-Thompson maneuver and a counter-move against Talmadge's efforts to have his supporters "appeal to the legislators by telegraph and telephone."

FAMILY NIGHT PLANNED

Hank and Slim Newman, the Georgia Crackers, and special films will be featured at the McCormick-Deering family night program planned Tuesday night in Memorial hall. All Pickaway county farmers are invited to bring their families to the program, which starts at 7:30 p. m. The event is being sponsored by the Hill Implement company.

jected by the Russians on physical grounds.

When the officers arrived at Oranienburg in March, they were stripped and forced to surrender all their clothing except one shirt, one pair of trousers, one pair of shoes and a set of underwear.

All valuables, including watches, rings, money or cameras were taken from them as were personal toilet articles issued them by the U. S. Army before their return to Germany.

The camp was run by German officers who apparently attempted to ingratiate themselves with the Russians by treating their former comrades as harshly as possible.

Soviet officers who supervised the camp were said to have been polite and correct in their occasional dealings with the German officer-prisoners.

After three months of waiting, during which time the men had no idea what was in store for them, they were told on June 11 that they had been "restored" to the status of prisoner-of-war.

At the end of June a Russian medical commission came to the camp and picked about 2,000 of the 5,000 men there. They were put in sealed box-cars and sent to Frankfurt on the Oder.

the meantime, he cautioned, there should be no waste of gas.

"We possibly will have more severe cold spells this Winter", he said, "and all of us can help prepare for those periods by being conservative in our daily use of gas."

Forecasters said that the sudden mild weather was being influenced by a low pressure area from the Northwest and that the mercury was on the upgrade as far north as the province of Alberta, Canada.

This means, forecasters said, that Winter has had another relapse and probably will be in no condition to bring any cold weather around for the next several days.

FARMER SEEKS TO REMOVE OATS AND HAY FROM BARN

Charles Jewell filed an injunction suit in Pickaway county common pleas court, Thursday, against George Goeller, Circleville township farmer, in a move to gain possession of a quantity of oats and hay in Goeller's barn.

Judge William D. Radcliff issued a temporary injunction restraining Goeller from interfering with Jewell in seizing the oats and hay. In his petition Jewell says that during the farm crop season in 1946 he and Goeller entered into a contract or rental agreement under the terms of which he was to farm a portion of the Goeller farm and was to have use of the Goeller barn for storage of his oats and hay. Jewell said he thus made use of the barn and that now Goeller refuses to permit him to remove the oats and hay.

course of action has been agreed upon.

Murray insisted that the industry can increase wages 25 percent without increasing price. It is understood that steel makers are willing to grant a 10 to 12 per cent wage boost.

During the last week, Murray, who will head the steel workers negotiating committee, has met several times with the negotiators "to study" the union's demand for a substantial wage increase, a welfare fund and a guaranteed annual wage.

THOMAS EDISON TO BE HONORED ON FEBRUARY 11

100 Years Ago Inventor Was Born In Little Ohio Town Of Milan

BY VIRGINIA COOKSEY
INS Staff Correspondent

MILAN, O., Jan. 24—One hundred years ago this coming Feb. 11 there was born in this little Ohio community of Milan a baby boy whose matured genius turned night into day all over the world.

He was Thomas Alva Edison, son of Samuel Edison, a sawmill operator. Thomas was the youngest of seven children, four of whom were born in the Lake Erie village.

Edison's native town and the rest of the world will pay tribute to his memory Feb. 11. One of the most lasting memorials will be a three-cent United States postage stamp.

The first stamp will be issued at Milan and it will bear the picture of the "wizard of Menlo park."

Raritan township in New Jersey, where Menlo park is located, will hold a two-day civic observance. Edison developed the electric light in his Menlo park laboratory.

Heading the Thomas A. Edison centennial committee, which will coordinate the anniversary celebration, will be another Ohio inventor, Dr. Charles F. Kettering.

However, for stamp collectors and historians, Milan will hold the spotlight on the 100th anniversary celebration.

Collectors anxious to add to their "first edition" stamps will flock to the little town to postmark letters bearing the Edison memorial stamp.

Visitors will see Edison's modest frame home in Milan, the town where he was known as an "addled" boy who refused to follow conformity if it conflicted with his beliefs.

Even before he started to school, where some of the mysteries of life were unfolded in formal classroom education, Edison began experimenting.

He sat on a nest of eggs—trying to find out what made them hatch and produce little chicks.

The lad also fell in a canal—and nearly drowned, all because of his curiosity.

A public whipping, administered after he built a fire in a barn and the structure was destroyed, failed to halt his enthusiasm to find out what made the world tick.

Bright-eyed and wide-awake looking in a picture when he was 24 years old, the inventive genius still has piercing eyes in the likeness on the anniversary stamp.

That aliveness and curiosity evidenced so early in his life was responsible for his producing rubber from goldenrod just before his death on Oct. 18, 1931.

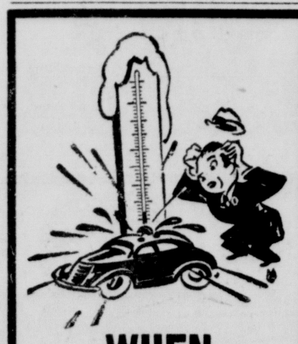

During the years between the barn episode and that final experiment, Edison invented the universal stock printer, for which he was paid $40,000; the phonograph, the alkaline storage battery, the motion picture camera—and probably greatest of all, a whole new system of artificial lighting.

TRUSTEES TOLD TO 'GO HOME, DO SOMETHING'

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 24—The world needs personal integrity and hard work more than anything else in the belief today of Dr. Willis A. Sutton, Atlanta, Ga.

Speaking at the 19th annual convention of the Ohio State Association of Townshp Trustees and Clerks in Columbus, Dr. Sutton urged the delegates to "go home and do something."

He said that the battle for America is the battle for the home life of the nation and asserted:

"The America that you know will not be here in 50 years if home life breaks down in the next half century as much as it has in the past 50 years."

Dr. Sutton is a guest lecturer for the educational department of the Reader's Digest. He was for many years superintendent of Atlanta schools and is a former president of the National Education association.

Prior to Dr. Sutton's address, the Buckeye Sheriff's association was criticized by Edwin J. Bath of the Ohio Farm Bureau for its opposition to appropriations for the state highway patrol.

FRENCH REVEAL WIDE PROGRAM FOR GERMANY

Proposal Presented To Top Nations Would Treat Reich As Unit

PARIS, Jan. 24—An elaborate French program for the future government of Germany—including establishment of a federal union and creation of central economic controls—was revealed today by the Quai D'Orsay.

Cinfirming International News Service reports to this effect, a spokesman for the French foreign ministry said the proposal has been presented formally to Washington, London and Moscow.

It was hoped that the French plan would lay the groundwork for settling the German treaty problems at the forthcoming foreign ministers meeting in Moscow.

The French proposal, divided into two periods, was contained in two documents covering provisional organization during continuance of the Allied occupation and, secondly, providing for a permanent of constitutional government.

Most striking feature of the entire program was France's willingness to see Germany become an economic and political whole, though a spokesman insisted this has long been the French policy "in principle."

This aspect of the proposals, at first glance, appeared to be a complete about-face from the previous French stand.

Ever since Potsdam, the French staunchly have opposed treating Germany as a political or economic unit.

However, the plan as announced would vest principal powers in the states rather than in the federal government. This would be true both in economic and political fields.

All powers not specifically accorded to the federal government would remain with the states.

The Quai D'Orsay spokesman gave newsmen a complete, detailed acount of France's new plan, without actually distributing copies of these highly-important documents which, up til this morning, had been "top secret."

Safeguards against the resurgence of Germany as a military power would be provided under the plan.

Firestone local 7 filed suit asking $24,640,000 from the Firestone Tire and Rubber company. The Firestone company already has been sued for $24,525,000 in a suit brought by a former employe.

'BOSSY BLONDE' NEW SUSPECT IN 'DAHLIA' CASE

Former Jockey Says He Saw Murdered Girl With Blonde Jan. 13

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 24—Police today turned up a new suspect—a "domineering blonde"—in their search for the sadist slayer of 22-year-old Elizabeth Short, the "Black Dahlia."

The blonde was projected into the case by one-time jockey John Jiroudek, who said he became acquainted with the "Black Dahlia" in 1945 at Camp Cook, Cal. Jiroudek related:

"On January 13 (two days before Miss Short was slain) I met Beth with this bossy blonde at Hollywood boulevard and Highland avenue. They were in a 1937 Ford sedan.

"The blonde kept insisting they drive off, and finally they did. She seemed jealous because Beth talked to me."

Jiroudek's account was substantiated in part by Charles Beckham, a taxicab pilot. Beckham reported he picked up a "big blonde" and a girl he is certain was the "Black Dahlia."

The cabbie said he drove the two girls to separate hotels in Hollywood. He reported both girls were dressed in black evening gowns and fur coats.

Police also were continuing their search for two petite women with whom a bartender claims he saw Miss Short Jan. 10 in a Hollywood bar.

In another development, police yesterday learned the identity of an anonymous telephone caller who reported the presence of the "Black Dahlia's" body in a vacant lot in Los Angeles.

The tipster, Mrs. John W. Bersinger, could add nothing new to the case, however. She explained she observed the body en route to have her daughter's shoes repaired. She explained that the desk sergeant who took her call had not asked her name.

More helpful was Bob Meyer. He reported that at 6:30 a. m. the day the body was found he observed, from his window, a 1935 black Ford sedan pause briefly at the curb where the bisected torso was deposited. Weeds obscured his view of what occurred after the car stopped, however.

Investigation was proceeding on the theory the "Black Dahlia's" slayer was a woman. It is further believed the slain girl was kept prisoner, possibly drugged, before she was literally tortured to death.

PRICE OF MILK DROPS TWO CENTS IN CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, Jan. 24—Cleveland housewives welcomed the first signs of decreasing food bills as milk prices dropped two cents a quart today.

The estimated saving in greater Cleveland will run to $11,000 daily as most dairies followed the Telling-Belle Vernon company in making the first price cuts since before the war.

Home delivered standard milk skidded to 18 cent a quart while the price at stores fell to 17 cents.

PLANE MISSING

BOGOTA, Jan. 24—An intensive search over Colombia's mountains and jungles was pressed today for a twin-engined transport plane, missing for two days with 15 persons, on a flight from Gogota to Barranquilla.

MALE TEACHERS MAY DISAPPEAR, ARTICLE SAYS

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 24—The possibility that the male teacher eventually may vanish from Ohio's schools was advanced today by Alfred C. Stein, a junior high school teacher at Springfield.

Stein advanced the theory in an article published in Ohio schools magazine. He charged such a result would mean "inadequate teaching of the principles of American citizenship." He wrote:

"There should be a desire to strengthen the positive influence that comes as the result of a male school teacher's establishing a home, having children and bringing them up in true American principles."

Stein declared that the whole level of salaries must be raised if men teachers are to be retained in the state's school system.

"Our children," he wrote, "have the right to the best teachers. It is generally agreed that proper education calls for an equal number of teachers of both sexes, particularly in the upper grades."

However, he continued, "it is becoming increasingly a financial impossibility for the teacher with a family to remain in the profession."

KILLED AT CROSSING

MASSILLON, O., Jan. 24—Funeral arrangements were made today in Massillon for Nimen V. Crawford, 62, Genoa. He was killed yesterday when he became confused at a Pennsylvania railroad crossing and a passenger train hit his car.

LAWYERS GAIN DELAY IN DAY DIVORCE RECALL

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 24—Actress Laraine Day wheeled a newly-hired legal battery into position today to fight Superior Judge George A. Dockweiler's announced intention of rescinding her California divorce because she married Leo (Lippy) Durocher.

The barristers, former superior judge Isaac Pacht and N. Jose H. Ross, conferred for an hour with Dockweiler. Later, they announced he had agreed to hold up action until they had studied the case.

Judge Dockweiler, meanwhile, instructed state attorney general Fred N. Howser to prepare charges that the divorce was obtained with "collusion, fraud and bad faith."

Pacht and Ross scheduled another talk with Dockweiler next Tuesday.

The actress divorced airport manager Ray Hendricks in Judge Dockweiler's court Monday and married Durocher the following day at El Paso, Tex., after a pause in Juarez, Mex., for a "quickie" divorce. California law requires divorced couples to wait a year before remarrying.

Durocher, keeping a stiff upper lip, spent the first day of their "honeymoon" with Miss Day on a studio set, where the bride started work on the film "Tycoon." He made no comment on the judge's action.

The Brooklyn baseball manager yesterday incensed Judge Dockweiler by blandly announcing that, while he and Miss Day would live apart in California, they intended to move under one roof in New York.

TWO MEN KILLED BY HIT - SKIPPER IN COLUMBUS

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 24—The consecutive "deathless days" in Columbus traffic was ended at 59 today.

Two men were killed when struck by a hit-skip driver on the west side last night, marking the first fatal accident in the city since last Nov. 25.

The hit-skip victims were John B. Goodman, 65, retired, and his son-in-law, Oron T. Collins, 51-year-old Pennsylvania railroad freight conductor.

About an hour after the accident, police apprehended a motorist in London. The highway patrol said he was booked as George H. Hailey, 40, London. Patrolmen said he admitted he was the driver of the auto which struck the two men.

DIPHTHERIA EPIDEMIC CLOSES MIFFLIN SCHOOLS

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 24—The diphtheria outbreak in nearby Mifflin township today reached epidemic proportions.

JUMPS TO SAFETY

KENT, O., Jan. 24—Harold Badder, 43, Dearborn, Mich., was alive today because he jumped from his truck just before the vehicle, loaded with 24 tons of coiled steel, crashed into an Erie railroad freight train in Kent. Badder said the truck brakes failed to hold on a hilltop.

FIRE DANGER IS DISCUSSED AT ROTARY MEETING

Fire as a menace to life and property was discussed by W. C. Guy, Columbus, in an address to members of the Circleville Rotary club, Thursday, following a noon luncheon at the Pickaway Arms.

Hotel fires snuffed out 272 lives in the United States in 1946, in 30 hotel blazes, it was declared by Guy, who is manager and regional director for the Western Adjustment and Inspection company.

He asserted that in most instances the fires originated in cocktail rooms—mostly from careless use of cigarets. The worst fire hazard in hotels, the speaker said, is open stairways.

In quoting statistics for the nation Guy declared 660,000 fires occurred last year throughout the nation and 24,000 of these were in Ohio and that 424 lives were lost in Ohio. He said 340,000 fires were in homes and that cigarets are the chief cause of all fires, although 74,00 originated from defective wiring, with many others caused by defective roofs and chimneys and rubbish.

Accidents annually kill 10 million people in the United States, the speaker said, the ratio being one out of every 13 residents.

THREE ARMY AIRMEN BAIL OUT OF ARMY TRANSPORT

SEATTLE, Jan. 24—Three Army airmen were reported safe today after escaping possible death or injury by bailing out of a C-47 Army transport plane near Seattle.

The plane circled over the city for some time and reported by radio that it could not find a landing field through the overcast, and was running out of fuel.

The three men, who were the only persons aboard, decided to take to their parachutes and abandoned the craft.

DEATH TOLL 4

CLEVELAND, Jan. 24—Cleveland's traffic toll for 1947 stood at four today with the death of John Labanich, 50, of suburban Parma. A pedestrian, he was fatally injured early Monday. Five pedestrians were injured last night, none seriously.

Ralph Waldo Emerson wrote his poem, "The Dirge," in memory of his two brothers.

CHANGE FOR TAMMANY

AN Italian, Carmine G. DeSapio, has strong backing for the leadership of Tammany Hall, from which New York's Mayor William O'Dwyer wants to oust Edward V. Loughlin.

This would be an innovation in Tammany history. Almost without exception its leaders have been Irish. No other of New York's racial groups has had a chance. With their gift for political management the Irish have overcome the handicap of numbering a steadily smaller proportion of the population.

Italian leaders of other city organizations have been scarce. New Orleans' Robert Maestri is almost the only one whose name comes to mind.

Some of Tammany's leaders have disgraced the city; others have not been bad. DeSapio should not have much trouble to be better than the average.

FORGIVENESS OF GERMANS

THE Germans have often seemed, even in normal times, to have an unusual disposition for cultivating grievances, and this attitude is increased at present, in the midst of a cold, bleak winter, with a considerable lack of food and fuel. Living conditions are naturally depressing, and Berlin authorities paint a very doleful picture of the situation. They might do this in any event, but there is no disposition on the part of the Allies to impose undue hardship on a beaten foe.

Outsiders, however, are naturally less sympathetic than they might otherwise have been, because of the German war guilt and the immense troubles that the Germans themselves have imposed on unoffending neighbors. These are grievances which require at least a generation to forget and forgive.

NEW TERRITORY

THERE will be a fourth territory if Congressman Richard A. Grant of Indiana has his way. He would make Guam a territory, on a par with Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico. This would mean that, instead of its present status under the Navy department, it would have a governor appointed by the President and a legislature whom the citizens elected themselves.

Guam would be the smallest of all the territories if Congressman Grant's bill passes. It has an area of only 206 square miles, about as large as a goodsized county, and in 1940 had 22,000 inhabitants. If it is made a territory, will Wake Island and Midway demand the same promotion?

You might say it's a toss-up, whether atomic bombs or kids' skates are more important. We're betting on the skates.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24—The officially inspired reports said Mr. Truman had effected a great compromise between the Navy and Army to get service approval for his unified Army, Navy and Air Force. The implication of these top headlined accounts was that the President had given something or other unstated to the Navy for agreeing to relax its opposition and quit lobbying.

What this something or other was, is quite difficult to find. The published form of the now agreeable plan is about the same as the George report recommendation of April, 1945—yes, 1945. There is to be an overall secretary of national defense—instead of one called secretary of the armed forces as the original report recommended, but there are to be three equal departments under him: air, army and navy. The Navy won a new right to keep its planes but under a coordination requirement which may make the retention purely technical, and possibly unimportant. In all essential details the setup of the joint chiefs of staff is about the same also, except a war council has been added. But if the Navy considers this a compromise, certainly it could have reached just about the same compromise nearly two years ago.

Before this, the congress had already combined its Army and Navy committees, formally and officially, and the Truman budget had put all national defense consideration into a single item. The defeat of the Navy politicians had become an officially adopted conclusion long since, so there was no need for anyone to compromise.

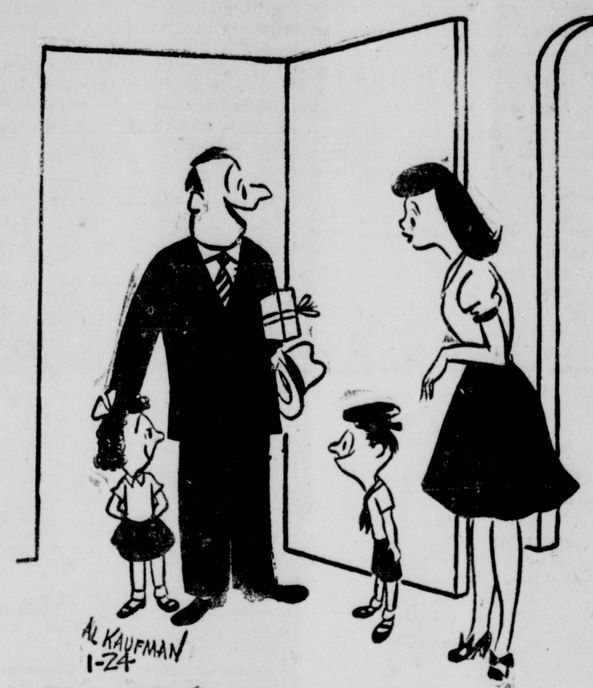

My information indicates Mr. Truman actually "compromised" the Navy with a rhetorical cat-of-nine tails. The "compromise" effected by the Navy was simply a promise to do no more lobbying to delay the merger which had already been too long delayed.

Thus there will now go into full effect a unification plan which was first disclosed in detail to the outside world (and my information is, also first to Mr. Truman himself) in this column on Oct. 8, 1945. Old readers may recall the disclosure made on that date that the joint chiefs of staff had been sitting on the George report since the preceding April and would not even let the President see it. You may remember I used my secret copy to build a fire under the joint chiefs of staff, helping to furnish the public impetus (given by you) to get the common sense recommendations accepted.

An Operation For Relief Of Steady Ringing in the Ears

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

AT one time or another nearly all of us have had at least a brief experience of "ringing" in the ears. In such cases it is a passing thing but even that should give us more sympathy for these unfortunate people — the great composer Beethoven was one of them—for whom these head noises, which doctors call tinnitus aurium are a day-in and day-out affair.

Constantly plagued in this way, they suffer so severely that they are unable to concentrate on their work, become nervous and upset and are unable to sleep.

A Careful Study

Dr. Julius Lempert of New York has made a careful study of this condition. He concluded that the ringing in the ears might be the result of inflammation of some structure within the middle part of the ear or the tympanic cavity. He found that when a person has an acute inflammation of the middle ear this same structure becomes acutely inflamed and ringing in the ears results. When the acute inflammation subsides the ear noises stop.

He also found that when a person has a long continued infection of the middle part of the ear this structure is destroyed and ringing in the ears no longer occurs.

The structure which seems to be responsible for the difficulty is a group of nerves known as the tympanic plexus. Hence, he concluded a cure for head noises might result from an operation to remove these nerves. He carried out the operation on 15 patients who had suffered from tinnitus aurium over a long period of time. In three of these patients there was also deafness due to damage to the structures of the middle ear as a result of infection. In all three patients the ear noises disappeared.

In Five Patients

In five patients the tinnitus occurred even though the hearing was normal. The operation cleared up the difficulty in only three of these.

In four of the patients the tinnitus was accompanied by deafness due to complete destruction of the ear nerves. In three of these the operation cured the tinnitus.

In the three remaining patients there was damage to both the middle and internal ear and the operation relieved only one of them of the tinnitus.

It would seem that if persons have ringing in the ears and medical measures of treatment do not bring relief the operation suggested by Dr. Lempert might be worth trying.

SYNOPSIS

When Cliff Bogard accepted the U. S. Rubber Division's dangerous assignment of opening up virgin rubber plantations in New Dixie, South America, he was surprised to find that the person Washington sent down to aid him in getting the option was Janet Norman, a tall, bronze-haired beauty. However, she knew the territory, having been brought up there by her late father, beloved doctor of the community. New Dixie, a kind of feudal colony resulting from the migration of Americans before the Civil War, disliked outside interference, as did their enemies, the Blacklanders, a group of rebellious natives. Cliff is angered when Janet insists they start immediately for New Dixie, despite the fact that only three weeks before the authorities there had refused Cliff an option and ordered him to leave. Lack of gas forces their plane to land near the jungle home of elderly Wade Carroll, whose occupation is capturing wild animals for zoos. Surprised and pleased to see Janet again, he warns them that the Blacklanders are in the vicinity. No one knows the identity of their new leader, but the Dixie vaqueros have sworn to capture him and Vicente, his chief lieutenant. Lilli, attractive young native girl whom Wade adopted when her parents died, has known the latter since childhood. She talks with Cliff while Wade saddles horses in preparation for the journey to New Dixie.

CHAPTER FOUR

ACCEPTING Cliff's long scrutiny with perfect composure, Lilli's eyes were moving slowly over his face. "Is that a dimple?" she asked.

"What?" He pulled his thoughts back with a jerk.

She touched the deep cleft in his chin. "That."

"That," he answered, "was donated by an Argentine mule."

She laughed.

"When you laugh," he said, "you remind me of my kid sister."

"Do you love her?"

"You bet."

Her face lighted.

It was wonderfully quiet and restful after the roar of the plane, and this girl was restful too. Already Cliff felt far closer to her than to Janet Norman, and far less need to be on guard—she wasn't the executive type. And seventeen. Nine years younger than he.

A rustle in the thatched leaves above his head brought him bolt upright, and Cliff's startled gaze rose to the glistening coils of a snake gliding across a rafter.

Lilli smiled. "That's Uncle Wade's python. She's worth more than a dozen cats to keep the mice down. Want to see Uncle Wade's menagerie? We'll have time before the horses are ready." A note of eagerness gave new life to her voice.

He stood up. "Let's go."

The acrid odor of animals came to him even before he saw the huge semicircle of cages by the river. Most of them were flimsily made of bamboo, bound together with vines, but two were of sturdy steel, with heavily bolted doors, and in one of them a pair of ocelots paced restlessly. The other was empty.

"Don't get too near those boxes," Lilli cautioned. "Uncle Wade keeps his bushmasters there."

"What's he do with all these animals?" Cliff asked.

"Sells them to zoos. Twice a year the boat comes up to take them away."

There were beasts all about them. A dozen monkeys scolded from a nearby cage, a pair of coati-mundi ran toward them, uttering small, friendly noises, hoping for food, then close beside Cliff a low snarl made him whirl—lips drawn back, a full-grown jaguar was looking up with lethal, greenish eyes.

Lilli leaned down. "You do like to scare people, don't you, Plato?" She kneeled before the cage, and the snarling ceased; slowly the anger drained from the green, malignant eyes, and now Lilli raised her arm, reaching between the bars, scratched the jaguar's head, while Cliff watched, fascinated, hardly breathing.

She laughed up at him. "If you tried that, you'd lose an arm."

It made a memorable picture in the soft, dappled sunlight—the girl, slender as a willow, with bare feet and braided hair, her arm about the great cat that stood with lowered head and sleepy, placid eyes. It seemed to Cliff that Lilli herself belonged to this world of jungle no less than the jaguar, and again he was conscious of the mobile delicacy in the modeling of her face and body; he saw the girl drop her eyes, and knew he had been staring overlong.

Still fondling the jaguar's shoulder, she began speaking to the animal, while the monkeys ceased their scolding, then suddenly both girl and jaguar turned their heads, and a growl rose in the big cat's throat. They were listening to something Cliff could not hear, and not until a moment later did he catch the sound of hoofs coming from the jungle behind him.

Cliff turned. There in the trail a rider sat a great black horse.

Never in Bogard's life had he seen a man so huge. He must have been six feet tall at least, but height was no real measure of his bulk, for the body itself was bearlike. The face was dark, almost swarthy, with well-molded lips, high-arched nose, and tawny eyes. A strange, unequal face that just missed being handsome.

Throughout a silent moment the rider looked down, then, dismounting, walked forward until Cliff saw with surprise that tall as he himself was, this man towered over him.

Even then he did not speak, but stood watching Cliff, studying him. There was something vaguely menacing in that leisurely appraisal, and as if Lilli sensed it too, she moved to Bogard's side.

"Hello, Vin," she said in a half whisper, and Cliff knew he stood face to face with the one man Wade had wanted him to avoid.

At sound of Lilli's voice, Vicente looked toward her, then he spoke her name, and a brief warmth softened his tawny eyes, but when he turned back to Cliff the eyes had gone flinty again.

"You are Cliff Bogard?" It was more an accusation than a question, voiced in a tone that was deeply resonant, and Cliff caught the faint trace of an accent.

"That's right," Cliff answered.

"Why do you come here?"

"To open up the New Dixie rubber plantations."

"What makes you think you can do that?"

Cliff smiled. "What makes you think I can't?" He drew out a pack of cigarettes and offered it to the rider. Vicente shook his head. Cliff's unruffled acceptance of the situation seemed to disconcert him, and for a moment he stood frowning and hesitant, then again the deep voice rumbled, "Three weeks ago another one came here for rubber. I warned him to go. He did not go. Have you heard what happened?"

"You ran him out. I bought his warehouse and machinery."

"You wasted your money. You will never use it."

"Why not?"

"We do not want you in the Blacklands. That is our home."

Cliff lit his cigarette. "I don't quite see what you have to do with me. The plantations belong to the people of New Dixie, and I have an option on that rubber. I brought a big crew of men for this job, and I made a contract with the United States Government. I can't turn around now and tell them the deal's off just because you don't want it that way. My country is in a jam because it can't get enough rubber, and this is a job that has to be done."

Cliff spoke slowly and very quietly, but his own voice held an overtone of decision that brought a glint to Vicente's eyes and caused Lilli to look up anxiously.

"Vin," she urged, "he's not here to do you any harm. I just know he's not."

Vicente's frown told plainly how little he relished her plea in Cliff's behalf. Then, with a kind of savage earnestness, he spoke, "I have not come to argue, but I tell you this. We do not want roads and bridges that will open up our Blacklands to the outside world. For us the jungle means safety and a way of life that we have chosen—everything that roads and the scum of the outside world would destroy. My chief has ordered me to warn you of these things, and so I have warned you. Even now it will not be too late." Vicente raised his hand toward the river. "Give me your word to go back on the next plane, and I will leave you in peace."

"I can't do that," Cliff answered.

A long silence. Both men knew they had reached an impasse, and Vicente's eyes began smoldering again. "In that case, we will take ways to persuade you." He spoke almost regretfully. "They will not be pleasant ways, senor. Already my young men are angry because I was not harder with the one who came before you." The words were calmly spoken, but the intent so grimly clear that Cliff gave up all thought Vicente might be bluffing—he was in very deadly earnest, and Cliff made a last attempt.

"Aren't you trying to hold back the ocean? You threw the other fellow out, and what happened? I came. If you throw me out, someone else will come. As long as the world is starving for rubber, there will always be some one else—"

A bedlam of angry Spanish and English drowned out his words, and behind them Pablo hurried up the trail, followed by a dozen horsemen.

Today's Horoscope

If this is your natal day, although you are good-natured, fair and truthful, you are slightly inclined toward selfishness. You should marry early in life, and choose a mate born in May, July or November, and one who is spiritually inclined. Influences today are adverse. Worrisome issues, broken promises face you. Sober realities will probably have to be dealt with. Serious talk or news shown. Cultivate faith and patience to surmount the difficulties and trials which threaten you this year. Safeguard the health of self and family, watch business, defer changes, avoid the law. The child who is born on this date will not be fortunate or robust, health always needing extra care and attention. Financial stringency and loss through law or property are probable.

One-Minute Test Answers

1. No, as it is "an act of God," so-called.
2. Manslaughter is presumed to be killing without malice; murder implies criminal intent.
3. Only the ability to will, direct, permit or assent.

Lord Inverchapel Recalls His Early Days in U. S.

Truman Pre-'48 Strategy May Put GOP on the Spot

Special to Central Press

● WASHINGTON—Lord Inverchapel, the British ambassador, has no intention of returning to England before midsummer, at least. He is too busy reliving some of the times he enjoyed when, as a young embassy clerk, he previously served in Washington. Chatting a few days ago, he appeared anxious to visit Florida and several other places.

But uppermost in his mind is the thought of spring and watching the flowers he personally planted come to bloom. Then he wants to go to New England.

Inverchapel

"I used to shoot whitetailed deer," he said. "I don't mind that, but I couldn't shoot a bear. It made my guide angry, for it was a beautiful bear. He was sitting there munching blueberries and I hadn't the heart."

He prefers, also, New England's hardwood trees as "far better than those eternal Christmas trees they have in the west."

The envoy's memory of good sport is to take a canoe to Harper's Ferry, toss it in the water and shoot the rapids down to Great Falls, just out of Washington.

"You can make it nicely in a weekend," he said. "Start Saturday afternoon and you are back in Washington Monday morning. But be sure to have at least an 18-foot canoe or you are liable to nose under in stiff rapids."

● POLITICAL OBSERVERS ARE WATCHING President Truman closely for signs that his pre-1948 strategy might take the form of putting the Republicans on the spot by forcing them to make important decisions which they may be reluctant to make.

They noted that his termination of hostilities had all the earmarks of forcing the GOP to commit itself on several essential points—farm support prices, excise taxes and the Smith-Connally act. In his state of the union message, observers saw his references to demands for a balanced budget and debt-reduction in the face of Republican requests for lower income taxes.

Some observers think Mr. Truman will steer a middle course, waiting for the Republicans to make mistakes before he takes a stand for 1948.

● FORMER REP. ROGER C. SLAUGHTER (D) of Missouri who was "purged" by President Truman last year, may accompany the House surplus property committee overseas as special counsel.

Sources close to the committee declared that Slaughter, who acted as committee chairman last year, would probably be asked to make the trip—after the adjournment of Congress this summer.

The Missourian, who aroused the president's ire by voting against administration legislation, has returned to his law practice in Kansas City. It was not known whether he would accept the committee's invitation.

The committee, which is being reconstituted under the chairmanship of Rep. Ross Rizley (R) of Oklahoma, is expected to concentrate this year on the disposal of billions of dollars in surplus property overseas.

● DIPLOMATS HOUSED in the State Department building just across a narrow tree-lined street from the White House should be emersed in the problems of international policy. But about the corridors, talk centers rather on the removal of the oldest department of the government to Washington's "foggy bottom."

The die appears cast that most of them will move, including Secretary George C. Marshal and his aides.

State Chiefs May Leave Old Quarters

President Truman says he wants the secretary of state to stay where he is, but White House moves make it impossible.

Mr. Truman has placed many special agencies in the State Department building, such as the Budget Bureau and the Atomic Energy Commission. Recently he has also ordered the offices of John Steelman, "assistant president," to be located there.

Newsmen are disturbed about giving up the lush, carpeted, soundproofed press room, built for them by former Secretary Stettinius.

As one budget bureau inspector said on seeing the room, "All it lacks is a bar."

CHANGE FOR TAMMANY

AN Italian, Carmine G. DeSapio, has strong backing for the leadership of Tammany Hall, from which New York's Mayor William O'Dwyer wants to oust Edward V. Loughlin.

This would be an innovation in Tammany history. Almost without exception its leaders have been Irish. No other of New York's racial groups has had a chance. With their gift for political management the Irish have overcome the handicap of numbering a steadily smaller proportion of the population.

Italian leaders of other city organizations have been scarce. New Orleans' Robert Maestri is almost the only one whose name comes to mind.

Some of Tammany's leaders have disgraced the city; others have not been bad. DeSapio should not have much trouble to be better than the average.

FORGIVENESS OF GERMANS

THE Germans have often seemed, even in normal times, to have an unusual disposition for cultivating grievances, and this attitude is increased at present, in the midst of a cold, bleak winter, with a considerable lack of food and fuel. Living conditions are naturally depressing, and Berlin authorities paint a very doleful picture of the situation. They might do this in any event, but there is no disposition on the part of the Allies to impose undue hardship on a beaten foe.

Outsiders, however, are naturally less sympathetic than they might otherwise have been, because of the German war guilt and the immense troubles that the Germans themselves have imposed on unoffending neighbors. These are grievances which require at least a generation to forget and forgive.

NEW TERRITORY

THERE will be a fourth territory if Congressman Richard A. Grant of Indiana has his way. He would make Guam a territory, on a par with Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico. This would mean that, instead of its present status under the Navy department, it would have a governor appointed by the President and a legislature whom the citizens elected themselves.

Guam would be the smallest of all the territories if Congressman Grant's bill passes. It has an area of only 206 square miles, about as large as a goodsized county, and in 1940 had 22,000 inhabiants. If it is made a territory, will Wake Island and Midway demand the same promotion?

You might say it's a toss-up, whether atomic bombs or kids' skates are more important. We're betting on the skates.

SYNOPSIS

When Cliff Bogard accepted the U. S. Rubber Division's dangerous assignment of opening up virgin rubber plantations in New Dixie, South America, he was surprised to find that the person Washington sent down to aid him in getting the option was Janet Norman, a tall, bronze-haired beauty. However, she knew the territory, having been brought up there by her late father, beloved doctor of the community. New Dixie, a kind of feudal colony resulting from the migration of Americans before the Civil War, disliked outside interference, as did their enemies, the Blacklanders, a group of rebellious natives. Cliff is angered when Janet insists they start immediately for New Dixie, despite the fact that only three weeks before the authorities there had refused Cliff an option and ordered him to leave. Lack of gas forces their plane to land near the jungle home of elderly Wade Carroll, whose occupation is capturing wild animals for zoos. Surprised and pleased to see Janet again, he warns them that the Blacklanders are in the vicinity. No one knows the identity of their new leader, but the Dixie vaqueros have sworn to capture him and Vicente, his chief lieutenant. Lilli, attractive young native girl whom Wade adopted when her parents died, has known the latter since childhood. She talks with Cliff while Wade saddles horses in preparation for the journey to New Dixie.

CHAPTER FOUR

ACCEPTING Cliff's long scrutiny with perfect composure, Lilli's eyes were moving slowly over his face. "Is that a dimple?" she asked.

"What?" He pulled his thoughts back with a jerk.

She touched the deep cleft in his chin. "That."

"That," he answered, "was donated by an Argentine mule."

She laughed.

"When you laugh," he said, "you remind me of my kid sister."

"Do you love her?"

"You bet."

Her face lighted.

It was wonderfully quiet and restful after the roar of the plane, and this girl was restful too. Already Cliff felt far closer to her than to Janet Norman, and far less need to be on guard—she wasn't the executive type. And seventeen. Nine years younger than he.

A rustle in the thatched leaves above his head brought him bolt upright, and Cliff's startled gaze rose to the glistening coils of a snake gliding across a rafter.

Lilli smiled. "That's Uncle Wade's python. She's worth more than a dozen cats to keep the mice down. Want to see Uncle Wade's menagerie? We'll have time before the horses are ready." A note of eagerness gave new life to her voice.

He stood up. "Let's go."

The acrid odor of animals came to him even before he saw the huge semicircle of cages by the river. Most of them were flimsily made of bamboo, bound together with vines, but two were of sturdy steel, with heavily bolted doors, and in one of them a pair of ocelots paced restlessly. The other was empty.

"Don't get too near those boxes," Lilli cautioned. "Uncle Wade keeps his bushmasters there."

"What's he do with all these animals?" Cliff asked.

"Sells them to zoos. Twice a year the boat comes up to take them away."

There were beasts all about them. A dozen monkeys scolded from a nearby cage, a pair of coati-mundi ran toward them, uttering small, friendly noises, hoping for food, then close beside Cliff a low snarl made him whirl—lips drawn back, a full-grown jaguar was looking up with lethal, greenish eyes.

Lilli leaned down. "You do like to scare people, don't you, Plato?" She kneeled before the cage, and the snarling ceased; slowly the anger drained from the green, malignant eyes, and now Lilli raised her arm, reaching between the bars, scratched the jaguar's head, while Cliff watched, fascinated, hardly breathing.

She laughed up at him. "If you tried that, you'd lose an arm."

It made a memorable picture in the soft, dappled sunlight—the girl, slender as a willow, with bare feet and braided hair, her arm about the great cat that stood with lowered head and sleepy, placid eyes. It seemed to Cliff that Lilli herself belonged to this world of jungle no less than the jaguar, and again he was conscious of the mobile delicacy in the modeling of her face and body; he saw the girl drop her eyes, and knew he had been staring overlong.

Still fondling the jaguar's shoulder, she began speaking to the animal, while the monkeys ceased their scolding, then suddenly both girl and jaguar turned their heads, and a growl rose in the big cat's throat. They were listening to something Cliff could not hear, and not until a moment later did he catch the sound of hoofs coming from the jungle behind him.

Cliff turned. There in the trail a rider sat a great black horse.

Never in Bogard's life had he seen a man so huge. He must have been six feet tall at least, but height was no real measure of his bulk, for the body itself was bearlike. The face was dark, almost swarthy, with well-molded lips, high-arched nose, and tawny eyes. A strange, unequal face that just missed being handsome.

Throughout a silent moment the rider looked down, then, dismounting, walked forward until Cliff saw with surprise that tall as he himself was, this man towered over him.

Even then he did not speak, but stood watching Cliff, studying him. There was something vaguely menacing in that leisurely appraisal, and as if Lilli sensed it too, she moved to Bogard's side.

"Hello, Vin," she said in a half whisper, and Cliff knew he stood face to face with the one man Wade had wanted him to avoid.

At sound of Lilli's voice, Vicente looked toward her, then he spoke her name, and a brief warmth softened his tawny eyes, but when he turned back to Cliff the eyes had gone flinty again.

"You are Cliff Bogard?" It was more an accusation than a question, voiced in a tone that was deeply resonant, and Cliff caught the faint trace of an accent.

"That's right," Cliff answered.

"Why do you come here?"

"To open up the New Dixie rubber plantations."

"What makes you think you can do that?"

Cliff smiled. "What makes you think I can't?" He drew out a pack of cigarettes and offered it to the rider. Vicente shook his head. Cliff's unruffled acceptance of the situation seemed to disconcert him, and for a moment he stood frowning and hesitant, then again the deep voice rumbled, "Three weeks ago another one came here for rubber. I warned him to go. He did not go. Have you heard what happened?"

"You ran him out. I bought his warehouse and machinery."

"You wasted your money. You will never use it."

"Why not?"

"We do not want you in the Blacklands. That is our home."

Cliff lit his cigarette. "I don't quite see what you have to do with me. The plantations belong to the people of New Dixie, and I have an option on that rubber. I brought a big crew of men for this job, and I made a contract with the United States Government. I can't turn around now and tell them the deal's off just because you don't want it that way. My country is in a jam because it can't get enough rubber, and this is a job that has to be done."

Cliff spoke slowly and very quietly, but his own voice held an overtone of decision that brought a glint to Vicente's eyes and caused Lilli to look up anxiously.

"Vin," she urged, "he's not here to do you any harm. I just know he's not."

Vicente's frown told plainly how little he relished her plea in Cliff's behalf. Then, with a kind of savage earnestness, he spoke, "I have not come to argue, but I tell you this. We do not want roads and bridges that will open up our Blacklands to the outside world. For us the jungle means safety and a way of life that we have chosen—everything that roads and the scum of the outside world would destroy. My chief has ordered me to warn you of these things, and so I have warned you. Even now it will not be too late." Vicente raised his hand toward the river. "Give me your word to go back on the next plane, and I will leave you in peace."

"I can't do that," Cliff answered.

A long silence. Both men knew they had reached an impasse, and Vicente's eyes began smoldering again. "In that case, we will take ways to persuade you." He spoke almost regretfully. "They will not be pleasant ways, senor. Already my young men are angry because I was not harder with the one who came before you." The words were calmly spoken, but the intent so grimly clear that Cliff gave up all thought Vicente might be bluffing—he was in very deadly earnest, and Cliff made a last attempt.

"Aren't you trying to hold back the ocean? You threw the other fellow out, and what happened? I came. If you throw me out, someone else will come. As long as the world is starving for rubber, there will always be some one else—"

A bedlam of angry Spanish and English drowned out his words, and behind them Pablo hurried up the trail, followed by a dozen horsemen.

One-Minute Test

1. In law, if you had been caught in a flood and physically prevented from fulfilling a contract, could you be held responsible?
2. What is the general distinction between manslaughter and murder?
3. What is the legal meaning of "mind"?

Hints on Etiquette

Remember when you entertain in your home, hospitality means sharing what you have, not trying to give what you do not have.

Words of Wisdom

We should often have reason to be ashamed of our most brilliant actions if the world could see the motives from which they spring. —Rochefoucauld.

Today's Horoscope

If this is your natal day, although you are good-natured, fair and truthful, you are slightly inclined toward selfishness. You should marry early in life, and choose a mate born in May, July or November, and one who is spiritually inclined. Influences today are adverse. Worrisome issues, broken promises face you. Sober realities will probably have to be dealt with. Serious talk or news shown. Cultivate faith and patience to surmount the difficulties and trials which threaten you this year. Safeguard the health of self and family, watch business, defer changes, avoid the law. The child who is born on this date will not be fortunate or robust, health always needing extra care and attention. Financial stringency and loss through law or property are probable.

One-Minute Test Answers

1. No, as it is "an act of God," so-called.
2. Manslaughter is presumed to be killing without malice; murder implies criminal intent.
3. Only the ability to will, direct, permit or assent.

Inside WASHINGTON

Lord Inverchapel Recalls His Early Days in U. S.

Truman Pre-'48 Strategy May Put GOP on the Spot

Special to Central Press

● WASHINGTON—Lord Inverchapel, the British ambassador, has no intention of returning to England before midsummer, at least. He is too busy reliving some of the times he enjoyed when, as a young embassy clerk, he previously served in Washington. Chatting a few days ago, he appeared anxious to visit Florida and several other places.

But uppermost in his mind is the thought of spring and watching the flowers he personally planted come to bloom. Then he wants to go to New England.

Inverchapel

"I used to shoot whitetailed deer," he said. "I don't mind that, but I couldn't shoot a bear. It made my guide angry, for it was a beautiful bear. He was sitting there munching blueberries and I hadn't the heart."

He prefers, also, New England's hardwood trees as "far better than those eternal Christmas trees they have in the west."

The envoy's memory of good sport is to take a canoe to Harper's Ferry, toss it in the water and shoot the rapids down to Great Falls, just out of Washington.

"You can make it nicely in a weekend," he said. "Start Saturday afternoon and you are back in Washington Monday morning. But be sure to have at least an 18-foot canoe or you are liable to nose under in stiff rapids."

● POLITICAL OBSERVERS ARE WATCHING President Truman closely for signs that his pre-1948 strategy might take the form of putting the Republicans on the spot by forcing them to make important decisions which they may be reluctant to make.

They noted that his termination of hostilities had all the earmarks of forcing the GOP to commit itself on several essential points—farm support prices, excise taxes and the Smith-Connally act. In his state of the union message, observers saw his references to demands for a balanced budget and debt-reduction in the face of Republican requests for lower income taxes.

Some observers think Mr. Truman will steer a middle course, waiting for the Republicans to make mistakes before he takes a stand for 1948.

• • • •

● FORMER REP. ROGER C. SLAUGHTER (D) of Missouri who was "purged" by President Truman last year, may accompany the House surplus property committee overseas as special counsel.

Sources close to the committee declared that Slaughter, who acted as committee chairman last year, would probably be asked to make the trip—after the adjournment of Congress this summer.

The Missourian, who aroused the president's ire by voting against administration legislation, has returned to his law practice in Kansas City. It was not known whether he would accept the committee's invitation.

The committee, which is being reconstituted under the chairmanship of Rep. Ross Rizley (R) of Oklahoma, is expected to concentrate this year on the disposal of billions of dollars in surplus property overseas.

State Chiefs May Leave Old Quarters

● DIPLOMATS HOUSED in the State Department building just across a narrow tree-lined street from the White House should be emersed in the problems of international policy. But about the corridors, talk centers rather on the removal of the oldest department of the government to Washington's "foggy bottom."

The die appears cast that most of them will move, including Secretary George C. Marshal and his aides.

President Truman says he wants the secretary of state to stay where he is, but White House moves make it impossible.

Mr. Truman has placed many special agencies in the State Department building, such as the Budget Bureau and the Atomic Energy Commission. Recently he has also ordered the offices of John Steelman, "assistant president," to be located there.

Newsmen are disturbed about giving up the lush, carpeted, soundproofed press room, built for them by former Secretary Stettinius.

As one budget bureau inspector said on seeing the room, "All it lacks is a bar."

Trinity Parish House Reopening Is Observed

Lutheran Groups Give Program For Occasion

After a complete re-decoration of the Parish House, Trinity Evangelical Lutheran congregation celebrated the reopening Thursday evening with a congregational get-together meeting. An elaborate banquet was served by committees selected from the various societies of the church.

After the dinner the entire group retired to the assembly room upstairs, and were treated to an interesting entertainment program, with Carl C. Leist acting as master of ceremonies.

This part of the program was opened by a number by the Sunday school orchestra with Clifford Kerns in charge.

After a general comment by Mr. Leist, he presented the Sunday school orchestra and they offered two numbers, "Little Marie", and "Buglers".

J. D. Hummel was next introduced. He commented on the history leading up to the building of the parish house, as well as giving a rather detailed description of the building, especially stressing its versatility.

Little Joyce Troutman presented the two piano numbers that she recently broadcast over station WHKC.

Mrs. Luther Walters again demonstrated her ability as an original writer in reciting her own poem "The Parish House Speaks", animating the parish house that supposedly talked about its condition both before and after the re-decoration.

Robert Norman, the scout master of the new troops of Trinity church, took the stage with six of his troop members, and gave a demonstration of scout work and what it means.

Mrs. G. L. Troutman sang two vocal solos, "Friend of Mine" and "The Lilac Tree". The piano accompaniment was played by Mrs. K. J. Herrmann.

A novel feature of the program was the short talk by James Kirkpatrick, his theme being "What the Parish House means to a New Member".

Children of the primary department under Mrs. Harold Anderson and Mrs. Collis Young as their leaders and instructors, sang two numbers, "Jesus Loves Me" and "We Are Tiny Flowers".

Jimmy Carpenter played two piano numbers, a waltz and a polonaise by Chopin, displaying his ability in this line of work in which he is so much interested.

Gladden Troutman recited, two of Laurence Dunbar's poems: "Turning the Babies in Their Bed" and "Little Brown Baby".

Mrs. Alice Wagner, in contralto solos chose, "Bless This House" and "The Hills of Home", for her numbers. Piano accompaniment was played by Miss Anna Schleyer.

Mrs. Gladden Troutman was introduced as a representative of the Ladies society. She told of their many years of activities, being the oldest organization within the church. She placed special stress upon their work of the past year.

The leader of the Sunday school orchestra, Clifford Kerns gave a baritone solo "Mighty Like a Rose". The piano accompaniment was played by Mrs. Kerns.

The Rev. G. L. Troutman summed up the program in his comments and especially stressed the wonderful success of the Vacational Daily Bible School and its effects during the 21 years of its operation. He also commented upon the increase of church membership and baby baptisms of the past year; 74 new members have been added and 62 infant baptisms since last Easter.

The program was brought to a close by the Luther League, one of the most active organizations in the church, by giving a pantomime entitled "The Lamp Went Out." The plot was read by Edward Wolf, Jr.

Every organization as well as both departments of the Sunday school, were represented in the giving of this program.

He traced the history of labor unions from the beginning which was around 1850, up to the present time.

Judge Radcliff gave a brief description of the department of labor, and the attitude of federal courts toward labor. Gladden Troutman recited, two of Laurence Dunbar's poems: "Turning the Babies in Their Bed" and "Little Brown Baby".

Mrs. Alice Wagner, in contralto solos chose, "Bless This House" and "The Hills of Home", for her numbers. Piano accompaniment was played by Miss Anna Schleyer.

Mrs. Gladden Troutman was introduced as a representative of the Ladies society. She told of their many years of activities, being the oldest organization within the church. She placed special stress upon their work of the past year.

The leader of the Sunday school orchestra, Clifford Kerns gave a baritone solo "Mighty Like a Rose". The piano accompaniment was played by Mrs. Kerns.

The Rev. G. L. Troutman summed up the program in his comments and especially stressed the wonderful success of the Vacational Daily Bible School and its effects during the 21 years of its operation. He also commented upon the increase of church membership and baby baptisms of the past year; 74 new members have been added and 62 infant baptisms since last Easter.

The program was brought to a close by the Luther League, one of the most active organizations in the church, by giving a pantomime entitled "The Lamp Went Out." The plot was read by Edward Wolf, Jr.

Every organization as well as both departments of the Sunday school, were represented in the giving of this program.

JUDGE RADCLIFF IS SPEAKER FOR BPW CLUB MEET

Business and Professional Women's club members gathered in the club room of Masonic Temple for their monthly session, Thursday evening.

During the business meeting, plans were made for a survey of Circleville, to incorporate prospective new members of the club. The organization will conduct the March of Dimes campaign to be held in the local theaters January 24 through January 30.

Mrs. George Barnes, chairman of the program committee, presented Judge William D. Radcliff, guest speaker of the evening Judge Radcliff chose for his topic and discussion, "Labor Legislation". He approached his most interesting and informative talk by giving a list of names of women in congress and the committees on which they serve. He traced the history of labor unions from the beginning which was around 1850, up to the present time.

Judge Radcliff gave a brief description of the department of labor, and the attitude of federal courts toward labor. He stated, "That labor disputes were considered state matter until after the inter-state commerce came in to effect." "There is room in our government for both labor and management".

At the conclusion of Judge Radcliff's discussion, refreshments were served during the social hour. Mrs. Joe Work and Mrs. George Barnes served on this committee.

DODGERS WANT FRISCH

NEW YORK, Jan. 24 — The Brooklyn Dodgers, who yesterday signed Pepper Martin, former spark plug of the St. Louis "Gas House" Gang as a scout, announced today that a similar job awaits Frank Frisch, if he is interested.

NEWS Behind the NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

their problem in the Byrd expedition to Little America.

In this kind of warfare you must primarily have airborne armies, a new kind of air defense and attack concept, depending on wholly different preparations and development. The chief significance of the merger — and its greatest beneficial point—thus is that it gives the air force equal standing with the old line services. Of course, you must have troops to occupy zones, and ships to supply armies of occupation, so the old services cannot by any means be dispensed with. They just have new jobs.

When the "compromise" was first announced, certain authorities thought it necessary to warn the public there would be no savings therefrom, but that the $15 billions armed service budget this year would not be cut below $11.5 billions next year. That sounded bad, so other authorities rushed out with promises to eliminate more energetically the current duplication and waste, and later it became known some reserve officers told the congressional committee a savings of perhaps $1.5 billions could be made in the military budget. The argument about this will no doubt be long and hard.

Opinions expressed by the writer in the column are the views of the author and not necessarily those of the Circleville Herald.

BUCK ATHLETES SEE ACTION IN THREE SPORTS

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 24—Action on three fronts marks Ohio State's weekend sports schedule.

Mike Peppe's brilliant swimming team meets Army tomorrow afternoon in the only home exhibition on the weekend card.

At Evanston, Buck wrestlers participate in a mat carnival. Spike Mooney's grapplers tangle with Northwestern in the afternoon and Minnesota at night.

Purdue, a fourth entry, meets the same pair of foes in reverse order.

Meanwhile, the Ohio State indoor track team opens its season at Michigan State, where both a varsity and junior varsity meet will be held simultaneously.

Only the faltering Scarlet and Gray basketball team is idle Saturday. The Bucks don't resume action until Monday night when they play at Butler against the present Mid-Western conference pace-setters.

ASHVILLE KP, ROBTOWN FIVES CLASH SATURDAY

Ashville basketball fans will have a chance Saturday to see two of the leading teams in the Circleville Industrial league in action.

Ashville KP, which handed Blue Ribbon its first league defeat Thursday night, and Robtown Stock Farm, will play at 8:15 p. m. Saturday in the Ashville gym.

The KP team lists two players from the Ashville high school championship team of two years ago, Dick Messick and "Red" Wilson, while the Robtown team is composed of players well-known around Commercial Point for several years.

A preliminary will be played at 7:15 p. m.

GEN. GROVES, HAMILTON GET PRO ATTENTION

NEW YORK, Jan. 24—Gen. Leslie R. Groves, who may be of a mind to proceed from his supervisory operations with the atomic bomb to those of the All American football conference, would be "a terrific asset" in the opinion expressed today by retiring commissioner James H. Crowley.

At the same time, Crowley seemed inclined to believe that the post lacked sufficient stature "to really interest" the Army's No. 1 constructionist. But this doubt was vouchsafed before Crowley became aware that Gen. Groves was reported to have listened with flattering interest to some preliminary overtures from other conference men.

Crowley, in fact, had just returned to New York for next week's annual meeting of the conference, after being more or less incommunicado in the Pocono hills following his resignation in order to take over the league's Chicago Rockets. Both as former leader and present colleague, therefore, Crowley's advocacy was regarded as more than desirable.

Meanwhile, Capt. Tom Hamilton, head coach of football at the naval academy, seemed to have come forward into overnight prominence among those regarded as eligible. Before this, Hamilton's "availability" had been more or less in question. Hamilton is a native of Columbus, Ohio.

But today it was reliably stated that he was in line for retirement presently and might, therefore, wish to hear what the pro-leaguers have to say for themselves, if anything.

ZIPPERS, B-W IN BATTLE FOR OHIO LOOP LEAD

Heavy Weekend Schedule In Store For Buckeye College Cagers

By JOHN BARRINGTON
INS Sports Writer

Akron University's Zippers and Baldwin-Wallace's Yellow Jackets battle for the Ohio Conference leadership tonight in the feature attraction of a heavy weekend basketball schedule.

The two north country quintets place unbeaten conference records, six games for Akron and four for B-W, on the block tonight. The Zippers, who haven't lost a game to an Ohio opponent, will be seeking their eleventh straight victory.

Tomorrow, the Zippers face another conference test against rejuvenated John Carroll.

Findlay, nominal state leader with nine wins and three defeats, risks its unbeaten conference status (4-0) against Heidelberg Saturday night.

Meanwhile, the state title scramble is wide open following previously invincible Capital's two reversals within five days.

Bowling Green, busiest team in the state with 16 wins and six losses, seeks to extend a modest three-game winning streak in a pair of weekend contests. The Falcons play Ohio U. tonight and Dayton tomorrow.

Cincinnati's Bearcats gun for their tenth victory in 15 starts when they meet the University of Louisville tomorrow. The Bearcats, too, are nursing a three-game succession of triumphs.

The Bearcats lost an earlier game to Louisville, 60 to 39. Tomorrow, they'll be playing on the Kentuckians' court to darken the prospects still more.

While the Ohio conference race waxed hot, the Mid-American loop cooled its heels with no family tilts scheduled until Jan. 29. The inactivity left Butler firmly established in first place with three straight victories.

Butler entertains Ohio State Monday night.

Cincinnati occupies the runner-up spot in the Mid-American with four wins and one defeat.

In other games tonight, Kent State plays host to Crile Hospital; Denison is at Marietta and Ohio Welesyan meets a touring Hawaiian all-star combine.

Tomorrow, Wesleyan travels to Akron to meet Goodyear; Oberlin tangles with Mt. Union; Wooster goes to Ashland; Western Reserve and Case clash at Cleveland; Xavier provides cannon fodder for Kentucky and Toledo takes on Detroit.

GOLFERS FEAR MAY WILL CALL OFF TOURNEY

CHICAGO, Jan. 24—The possibility that George S. May, promoter of golfdom's richest tournament, the All-American at Chicago's Tam O'Shanter club, may cancel the program, hung over the golf world today.

May announced yesterday that he had reduced the purse for the professional part of the tournament to $30,000 from a contemplated $60,000.

He asserted the main reason for the reduction in total prize money for the professsionals was "lack of cooperation on the part of the Professional Golfers' Association of America."

May expressed himself as incensed over recent bickering among PGA members which he said was responsible for numerous cancellations of tournaments and threats of cancellations of others.

BOYS CLUB SCHEDULE FOR SATURDAY LISTED

Boys participating in the Saturday program of the Circleville Boys Club at Circleville high school gym were reminded Friday by Supervisor Ed Amey of the schedule.

Older boys will report in the morning and younger boys in the afternoon. The schedule calls for grades 6 and 7 at 9 a. m.; grades, 8, 9, 10, 11 at 10:30 a. m.; grades 1, 2, 3, at 1 p. m. and grades 4 and 5 at 2:30 p. m.

DODGERS WANT FRISCH

NEW YORK, Jan. 24 — The Brooklyn Dodgers, who yesterday signed Pepper Martin, former spark plug of the St. Louis "Gas House" Gang as a scout, announced today that a similar job awaits Frank Frisch, if he is interested.

their problem in the Byrd expedition to Little America.

In this kind of warfare you must primarily have airborne armies, a new kind of air defense and attack concept, depending on wholly different preparations and development. The chief significance of the merger — and its greatest beneficial point—thus is that it gives the air force equal standing with the old line services. Of course, you must have troops to occupy zones, and ships to supply armies of occupation, so the old services cannot by any means be dispensed with. They just have new jobs.

When the "compromise" was first announced, certain authorities thought it necessary to warn the public there would be no savings therefrom, but that the $15 billions armed service budget this year would not be cut below $11.5 billions next year. That sounded bad, so other authorities rushed out with promises to eliminate more energetically the current duplication and waste, and later it became known some reserve officers told the congressional committes a savings of perhaps $1.5 billions could be made in the military budget. The argument about this will no doubt be long and hard.

In other games Eshelman defeated Eagles 33-27; Pickaway Dairy edged Tarlton A C 25-24 and Robtown trounced Five Points 44-26.

Dick Messick set the scoring pace for Ashville with 17 points. Young had 14 for Blue Ribbon. Leon Sims was held to six points. Blue Ribbon led the first period 8-7 and was ahead 25-22 at the half. Ashville took a one-point lead in the third quarter, which ended 31-30, and went on to win in the last period.

BUCK ATHLETES SEE ACTION IN THREE SPORTS

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 24—Action on three fronts marks Ohio State's weekend sports schedule.

Mike Peppe's brilliant swimming team meets Army tomorrow afternoon in the only home exhibition on the weekend card.

At Evanston, Buck wrestlers participate in a mat carnival. Spike Mooney's grapplers tangle with Northwestern in the afternoon and Minnesota at night.

Purdue, a fourth entry, meets the same pair of foes in reverse order.

Meanwhile, the Ohio State indoor track team opens its season at Michigan State, where both a varsity and junior varsity meet will be held simultaneously.

Only the faltering Scarlet and Gray basketball team is idle Saturday. The Bucks don't resume action until Monday night when they play at Butler against the present Mid-Western conference pace-setters.

ASHVILLE KP, ROBTOWN FIVES CLASH SATURDAY

Ashville basketball fans will have a chance Saturday to see two of the leading teams in the Circleville Industrial league in action.

Ashville KP, which handed Blue Ribbon its first league defeat Thursday night, and Robtown Stock Farm, will play at 8:15 p. m. Saturday in the Ashville gym.

The KP team lists two players from the Ashville high school championship team of two years ago, Dick Messick and "Red" Wilson, while the Robtown team is composed of players well-known around Commercial Point for several years.

A preliminary will be played at 7:15 p. m.

ZIPPERS, B-W IN BATTLE FOR OHIO LOOP LEAD

Heavy Weekend Schedule In Store For Buckeye College Cagers

By JOHN BARRINGTON
INS Sports Writer

Akron University's Zippers and Baldwin-Wallace's Yellow Jackets battle for the Ohio Conference leadership tonight in the feature attraction of a heavy weekend basketball schedule.

The two north country quintets place unbeaten conference records, six games for Akron and four for B-W, on the block tonight. The Zippers, who haven't lost a game to an Ohio opponent, will be seeking their eleventh straight victory.

Tomorrow, the Zippers face another conference test against rejuvenated John Carroll.

Findlay, nominal state leader with nine wins and three defeats, risks its unbeaten conference status (4-0) against Heidelberg Saturday night.

Meanwhile, the state title scramble is wide open following previously invincible Capital's two reversals within five days.

Bowling Green, busiest team in the state with 16 wins and six losses, seeks to extend a modest three-game winning streak in a pair of weekend contests. The Falcons play Ohio U. tonight and Dayton tomorrow.

Cincinnati's Bearcats gun for their tenth victory in 15 starts when they meet the University of Louisville tomorrow. The Bearcats, too, are nursing a three-game succession of triumphs.

The Bearcats lost an earlier game to Louisville, 60 to 39. Tomorrow, they'll be playing on the Kentuckians' court to darken the prospects still more.

While the Ohio conference race waxed hot, the Mid-American loop cooled its heels with no family tilts scheduled until Jan. 29. The inactivity left Butler firmly established in first place with three straight victories.

Butler entertains Ohio State Monday night.

Cincinnati occupies the runner-up spot in the Mid-American with four wins and one defeat.

In other games tonight, Kent State plays host to Crile Hospital; Denison is at Marietta and Ohio Welesyan meets a touring Hawaiian all-star combine.

Tomorrow, Wesleyan travels to Akron to meet Goodyear; Oberlin tangles with Mt. Union; Wooster goes to Ashland; Western Reserve and Case clash at Cleveland; Xavier provides cannon fodder for Kentucky and Toledo takes on Detroit.

GOLFERS FEAR MAY WILL CALL OFF TOURNEY

CHICAGO, Jan. 24—The possibility that George S. May, promoter of golfdom's richest tournament, the All-American at Chicago's Tam O'Shanter club, may cancel the program, hung over the golf world today.

May announced yesterday that he had reduced the purse for the professional part of the tournament to $30,000 from a contemplated $60,000.

He asserted the main reason for the reduction in total prize money for the professsionals was "lack of cooperation on the part of the Professional Golfers' Association of America."

May expressed himself as incensed over recent bickering among PGA members which he said was responsible for numerous cancellations of tournaments and threats of cancellations of others.

GEN. GROVES, HAMILTON GET PRO ATTENTION

NEW YORK, Jan. 24—Gen. Leslie R. Groves, who may be of a mind to proceed from his supervisory operations with the atomic bomb to those of the All American football conference, would be "a terrific asset" in the opinion expressed today by retiring commissioner James H. Crowley.

At the same time, Crowley seemed inclined to believe that the post lacked sufficient stature "to really interest" the Army's No. 1 constructionist. But this doubt was vouchsafed before Crowley became aware that Gen. Groves was reported to have listened with flattering interest to some preliminary overtures from other conference men.

Crowley, in fact, had just returned to New York for next week's annual meeting of the conference, after being more or less incommunicado in the Pocono hills following his resignation in order to take over the league's Chicago Rockets. Both as former leader and present colleague, therefore, Crowley's advocacy was regarded as more than desirable.

Meanwhile, Capt. Tom Hamilton, head coach of football at the naval academy, seemed to have come forward into overnight prominence among those regarded as eligible. Before this, Hamilton's "availability" had been more or less in question. Hamilton is a native of Columbus, Ohio.

But today it was reliably stated that he was in line for retirement presently and might, therefore, wish to hear what the pro-leaguers have to say for themselves, if anything.

BUCS SIGN THREE

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 24—General Manager Roy Hamey of the Pittsburgh Pirates today announced signed contracts have been received from Gene Woodling, Whitey Weitelmann and Vic Barnhart.

BOYS CLUB SCHEDULE FOR SATURDAY LISTED

Boys participating in the Saturday program of the Circleville Boys Club at Circleville high school gym were reminded Friday by Supervisor Ed Amey of the schedule.

Older boys will report in the morning and younger boys in the afternoon. The schedule calls for grades 6 and 7 at 9 a. m.; grades, 8, 9, 10, 11 at 10:30 a. m.; grades 1, 2, 3, at 1 p. m. and grades 4 and 5 at 2:30 p. m.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

COURAGE NOT INVOLVED

THERE IS no question of courage involved in the problem of whether or not to make a high sacrifice bid. It is a pure matter of mathematics. The player who is clear-headed in his ability to count the number of points about to be lost when the opponents make their contract, and can then calculate that his side would lose less through sacrificing and getting doubled—that is the fellow who makes the good sacrifice bids.

	♠ 10 9 4 ♥ 8 3 ♦ 10 9 8 6 ♣ K 10 6 5
♠ A ♥ A 9 7 6 5 4 ♦ A K ♣ Q 9 4 2	N W E S	♠ 5 ♥ K Q J 10 2 ♦ Q J 7 5 2 ♣ A 8
	♠ K Q J 8 7 6 3 2 ♥ None ♦ 4 3 ♣ J 7 3

(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
1 ♥	Pass	3 ♦	Pass
3 ♥	Pass	4 ♥	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ♠	Pass
6 ♥	Pass	7 ♥	7 ♠
7 NT

After that deal, South's opponents gave him credit for terrific courage in making his vulnerable sacrifice bid at the grand slam level—the first time they had ever heard of such a thing in rubber bridge when the bidder and his partner had done nothing previously except pass.

South, however, refused to accept orchids for bravery.

"You can compliment me for my ability to add if you want," he said, "but that is all."

Then he pointed out how he had calculated that the grand slam bonus, not vulnerable, would have been 1,000 points, the game would be worth about 300, and the tricks taken would bring 210, a total of 1510.

Against that, he had reckoned he could take seven tricks himself, and it was probable he could pick up one trick somewhere in North's hand—in which he was correct, as a club trick could have been developed. Taking eight tricks would leave him down five, he figured, for a loss of 1400.

"Wouldn't you rather lose 1400 than 1510?" he asked. All agreed his bid was a good one, but so was West's 7-No Trumps over it, a contract he made easily.

What is the soundest way for North and South to bid their strong combination?

BY RUDY JUSTER

NEW YORK, Jan. 24—A white-haired man receives the honors of the nation next week. He presided at the birth of modern radio 40 years ago January, 1907.

For his achievements in various fields of science, next Tuesday he will be presented with the Edison Medal of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

In the confusion of wires and coils of a broadcasting station is one small mechanism, about the size and shape of an incandescent bulb, the child born to Dr. Lee De Forest almost a half century ago.

At 73, sprightly Dr. De Forest still tinkers with laboratory equipment. He was 23 years old when he invented the "grid" vacuum tube, which incidentally has been all-important in talking motion pictures, television, the development of atomic energy and many other phases of the electronics industry.

The radio industry alone today is a business that figures its year-end finances in multi-digeted dollars, but Dr. De Forest has reaped small financial reward from what has been called his "epoch-making" invention.

Most of the money he earned from it went into court fees to fight patent suits and countersuits. The story is told how one time he almost was thrown into jail for daring to tell the court that people would be talking by radiophone across oceans.

Not until 20 years after the scientist patented his vacuum tube did radio broadcasting have its beginnings. Dr. De Forest was a part of the experimental work in transmitting music by radiotelephony in 1916.

Four years later, the first broadcasting stations carried words and music into the few homes owning receiving sets.

Station KDKA in Pittsburgh reported by air the results of the 1920 presidential election, considered to be the first radio broadcast as we know it today. (And in 1948 the infant television will set a political milestone in bringing to view a presidential election.)

Brooklyn's "Dottie Mahoney," in the person of Comedienne Shirley Booth, and the "Artistry in Rhythm" of Pianist-Maestro Stan Kenton return to the Vaughn Monroe Show Saturday, Feb. 1, over CBS. The program will originate in Kansas City, last stand in the singing maestro's swing to the west coast, where he begins a six-week engagement at the Hollywood Palladium on Feb. 4. Miss Booth will offer a new Mahoney skit, and Stan Kenton will lend his distinctive keyboard style to a solo and will join the entire company in the big finale, "Something to Remember You By."

Bill Gargan, star of the two-fisted detective series, " I Deal in Crime' over ABC Saturday nights, may soon fly East for additional conferences with Marine General Graves B. Erskine in connection with his work on the national Committee for Employment of the Physically Handicapped. Gargan is representing the radio industry on the committee.

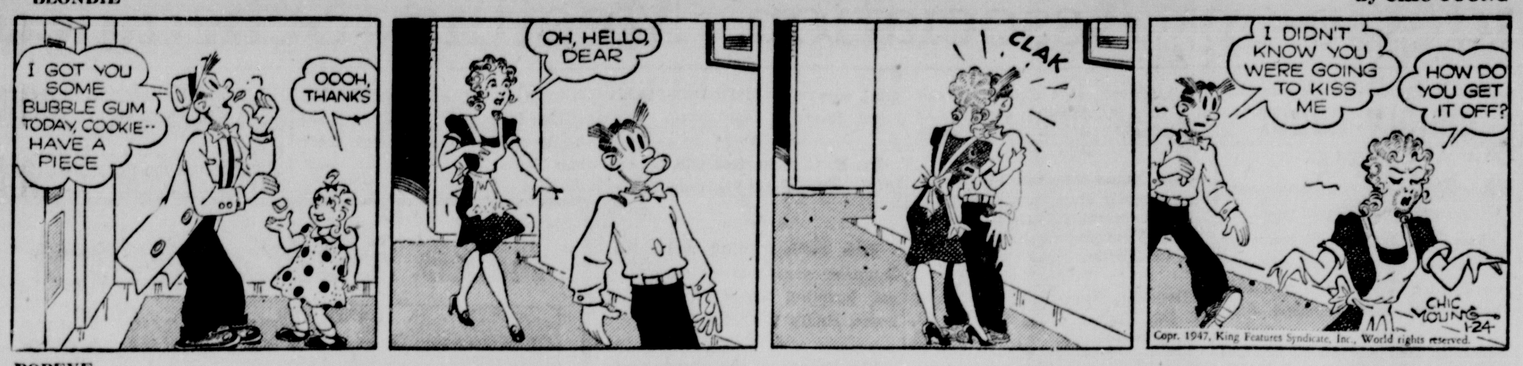

Henry J. Taylor, whose semi-weekly commentaries on the post-war American scene are heard via MBS on "Your Land and Mine," has written a lengthy piece on his friend Bernard M. Baruch which will appear in an early issue of "The Red Book."

Sammy Kaye broadcasts his ABC "Sunday Serenade" Feb. 2 from Miami, Fla., where the swing-and-sway maestro and Singers Betty Barclay, Don Cornell and Mary Marlow, will be vacationing following a tour of Kentucky, Tennessee, North and South Carolina, Alabama and Georgia.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK By R. J. SCOTT

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

COURAGE NOT INVOLVED

THERE IS no question of courage involved in the problem of whether or not to make a high sacrifice bid. It is a pure matter of mathematics. The player who is clear-headed in his ability to count the number of points about to be lost when the opponents make their contract, and can then calculate that his side would lose less through sacrificing and getting doubled—that is the fellow who makes the good sacrifice bids.

	♠ 10 9 4 ♥ 8 3 ♦ 10 9 8 6 ♣ K 10 6 5
♠ A ♥ A 9 7 6 5 4 ♦ A K ♣ Q 9 4 2	N W E S	♠ 5 ♥ K Q J 10 2 ♦ Q J 7 5 2 ♣ A 8
	♠ K Q J 8 7 6 3 2 ♥ None ♦ 4 3 ♣ J 7 3

(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
1 ♥	Pass	3 ♦	Pass
3 ♥	Pass	4 ♦	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ♦	Pass
6 ♥	Pass	7 ♥	7 ♠
7 NT

After that deal, South's opponents gave him credit for terrific courage in making his vulnerable sacrifice bid at the grand slam level—the first time they had ever heard of such a thing in rubber bridge when the bidder and his partner had done nothing previously except pass.

South, however, refused to accept orchids for bravery.

"You can compliment me for my ability to add if you want," he said, "but that is all."

Then he pointed out how he had calculated that the grand slam bonus, not vulnerable, would have been 1,000 points, the game would be worth about 300, and the tricks taken would bring 210, a total of 1510.

Against that, he had reckoned he could take seven tricks himself, and it was probable he could pick up one trick somewhere in North's hand—in which he was correct, as a club trick could have been developed. Taking eight tricks would leave him down five, he figured, for a loss of 1400.

"Wouldn't you rather lose 1400 than 1510?" he asked. All agreed his bid was a good one, but so was West's 7-No Trumps over it, a contract he made easily.

BY RUDY JUSTER

NEW YORK, Jan. 24—A white-haired man receives the honors of the nation next week. He presided at the birth of modern radio 40 years ago January, 1907.

For his achievements in various fields of science, next Tuesday he will be presented with the Edison Medal of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

In the confusion of wires and coils of a broadcasting station is one small mechanism, about the size and shape of an incandescent bulb, the child born to Dr. Lee De Forest almost a half century ago.

At 73, sprightly Dr. De Forest still tinkers with laboratory equipment. He was 23 years old when he invented the "grid" vacuum tube, which incidentally has been all-important in talking motion pictures, television, the development of atomic energy and many other phases of the electronics industry.

The radio industry alone today is a business that figures its year-end finances in multi-digeted dollars, but Dr. De Forest has reaped small financial reward from what has been called his "epoch-making" invention.

Most of the money he earned from it went into court fees to fight patent suits and counter-suits. The story is told how one time he almost was thrown into jail for daring to tell the court that people would be talking by radiophone across oceans.

Not until 20 years after the scientist patented his vacuum tube did radio broadcasting have its beginnings. Dr. De Forest was a part of the experimental work in transmitting music by radiotelephony in 1916.

Four years later, the first broadcasting stations carried words and music into the few homes owning receiving sets.

Station KDKA in Pittsburgh reported by air the results of the 1920 presidential election, considered to be the first radio broadcast as we know it today. (And in 1948 the infant television will set a political milestone in bringing to view a presidential election.)

Brooklyn's "Dottie Mahoney," in the person of Comedienne Shirley Booth, and the "Artistry in Rhythm" of Pianist-Maestro Stan Kenton return to the Vaughn Monroe Show Saturday, Feb. 1, over CBS. The program will originate in Kansas City, last stand in the singing maestro's swing to the west coast, where he begins a six-week engagement at the Hollywood Palladium on Feb. 4. Miss Booth will offer a new Mahoney skit, and Stan Kenton will lend his distinctive keyboard style to a solo and will join the entire company in the big finale, "Something to Remember You By."

Bill Gargan, star of the two-fisted detective series, " I Deal in Crime' over ABC Saturday nights, may soon fly East for additional conferences with Marine General Graves B. Erskine in connection with his work on the national Committee for Employment of the Physically Handicapped. Gargan is representing the radio industry on the committee.

Henry J. Taylor, whose semi-weekly commentaries on the post-war American scene are heard via MBS on "Your Land and Mine," has written a lengthy piece on his friend Bernard M. Baruch which will appear in an early issue of "The Red Book."

Sammy Kaye broadcasts his ABC "Sunday Serenade" Feb. 2 from Miami Fla., where the swing-and-sway maestro and Singers Betty Barclay, Don Cornell and Mary Marlow, will be vacationing following a tour of Kentucky, Tennessee, North and South Carolina, Alabama and Georgia.
